Peninsula project manager starts work

Minister for the Central Coast, Mr John Della Bosca, has announced the appointment of a project manager "to help strengthen community links on the Peninsula".

Ms Julie Parsons has started work this week under the NSW Government's Community Solutions and Crime Prevention Strategy.

"Julie's role will be to work on effective solutions for the Peninsula, in particular working with young people and older people to establish a collaborative approach," Mr Della Bosca said.

"The program is aimed at providing immediate and innovative responses to crime prevention issues in communities across NSW.

"Julie will work with an advisory group involving Gosford Council, the Peninsula Chamber of Commerce and other government and community organisations representing the interests of young people and older people."

Julie Parsons

Member for Peats, Ms Marie Andrews, said the Peninsula Project would be an important resource for the local community. "Julie will be based in Umina, behind the Umina library, and will work on improving outcomes for young people and older people on the Peninsula, as well as addressing the relationship between these groups," Ms Andrews said.

"Her role will also include working with the business community to consider the impact of economic development on young people and older people."

Julie's background includes 20 years community development work, most recently setting up the RoadWise Community Road Safety Program in Western Australia.

This program involved working closely with communities across Western Australia to address local road safety issues as determined by the local community.

The program focused on encouraging government and non-government agencies to work together to reduce death and injury on Western Australian

Julie has also worked for local government in NSW and in the community sector.

Council likely to agree to Empire Bay service station meeting of Gosford Council last Tuesday, July 8, has paved the way for a service station at Empire Bay, against the wishes of some residents, environmental groups, and councillors.

The developer has lodged an appeal with the Land and Environment court against the refusal of the development, an appeal which council solicitors say the council has little chance of defending successfully.

There are some issues including connection of the development to the sewerage system which the council decided needed to be checked, so a final decision was deferred until the next council meeting.

It is expected that the council will conditionally approve the development on July 22 before the scheduled date for the court case, which is August 6.

Councillors asked to see the plans for the development, but this was not possible as the plans were with the council's solicitors

Cr Daniel Cook said: "The right and proper thing to do is to hold off until we have the plans in front

"I would not be happy with this unless it was undertaken to have this site connected to the sewer," Cr Cook said

Cr Craig Doyle thought the application should be consentually approved on the

"This is ridiculous, we don't have a hope in Hades.

"If we're going to condition it, that's what we should do rather than shirking our duties.

"This is a decision that was zoned for use as a service station), not tonight.

"We've just got to make the best out of it," Cr Doyle said.

Cr Lynne Bockholt agreed with

She said: 'We were told by our solicitors tonight that we have no chance and that's just the way it

"I'll be supporting approval with the conditions."

Two members of the public spoke to council on the night, both wanting council not to approve the development.

Their concerns were that the sewerage proposal was inadequate, with traffic conditions, and with the risk of spills to the environment.

Concern was also raised that the hours of opening (5am to midnight) were not restrictive enough, which would attract made in 1998 (when the site was crime and disturb neighbours with noise.

Andrews meets clubs about poker tax

Member for Peats, Ms Marie Andrews, has met with Peninsula registered clubs about the recently announced changes to the poker machine tax.

Representatives Peninsula Clubs met with their local member to give their views on the impact the proposed changes will have on their clubs.

She listened to the clubs' concerns and gave them her assurance that she would make those concerns known to the Premier.

During the discussions, Ms Andrews acknowledged the contribution, which the registered clubs made to the local community by way of providing excellent recreational facilities to their members, and also their monetary contributions to numerous community service and sporting organisations.

"The registered club industry plays an important role in the local economy by the very fact that it employs hundreds of local residents and supports local businesses.

"I support the clubs in their campaign to ensure they can maintain a viable future," said Ms Andrews.

Public meeting led to sewerage scheme

A public meeting was held at Rogers Park, Woy Woy, on March 13, 1977, to discuss a sewerage scheme for the Woy Woy Peninsula.

Former Shire President Ron Hyndman addressed the meeting.

Ron was head of the Pelican Island team that swept the council elections in 1971.

Only two sitting councillors

Ron's priority was to get a new sewerage scheme and outfall.

Once that was certain, Ron Hyndman resigned from the council.

At the meeting, Ron claimed a Woy Woy loan was used to construct a Passvere Ditch at Wvoming which discharged sewerage into Narara Creek.

This was a loss of $1 million of Peninsula loan money and also a loss of sewerage priority.

He said that an interim scheme of a Passvere Ditch for Woy Woy

A motion was then moved for a presidential meeting altering the priority of sewerage.

Federal member Barry Cohen said he would urge the Australian Government to get more meaningfully involved in the sewerage problems of the Central Coast.

Shire president Malcolm Brooks said the Snake Gully site was not suitable because of the elevation.

He said a feasibility study was needed for an interim scheme for

He said he would oppose anything but a treatment works with 10/10 effluent, ie the best possible effluent.

Department of Public Works had offered the services of a skin diver to investigate the pollution of the sewer outfall at Mt Ettymalong.

There was a need to reappraise the regional sewerage scheme.

Also that there would be no subsidy if the scheme linked up with the Metropolitan Sewerage and Drainage Board.

State member Keith O'Connell said that the cost of sewerage at Somersby would have to be met by the industrialists who settled

Candidate Don Leggett, who was to become shire president in September of that year, said that the State Pollution Control Commission had not investigated pollution of the Woy Woy area, with the exception of the Mt Ettymalong outfall.

At the end of the meeting, motions were passed calling for

- A Presidential minute of reappraisal of the scheme, with an alternate proposal for sewerage for Woy Woy within four years.
- The support of State member Keith O'Connell, and
- If upon refusal by council, the appointment of an administrator.

Money for Nambus repairs

Andrews has presented a cheque for $6122 to the Gosford City Sub-Branch of the Vietnam Veterans Association for urgent repairs to its new Nambus.

The Nambus project started in 1993 with the aim of educating school students about Australia's involvement in the Vietnam War.

The new Nambus was donated to the sub-branch by the NSW Government following Ms Andrews' representations to the then Minister for Transport, Mr Carl Scully.

Bank feasibility study expected

A feasibility study for a proposed community bank at Ettalong is expected to start in about a month's time.

Committee coordinator for the bank, Cr Debra Wales, said that, although the Bendigo Bank's requirement of $550,000 in pledges had been met, "more pledges are needed."

Cr Wales said that although pledge numbers were still below the bank's target of 300, "additional pledges have been made since the information day" on June 27.

"Bendigo Bank sees pledge numbers as an indicator of community support," she said.

Ms Wales said that the absence of a major bank at Ettalong stood in contrast to the mid-90s when four major banks had branches there.

It was not just a question of banking convenience but also one of business activity decline, she said.

"Shoppers have said that it's gone very quiet." Cr Wales said that the elderly in particular appreciated face-toface banking. "Although such banking is available through the Commonwealth at the post office, the security normally found in banks isn't available."

The NSW National Parks and Wildlife Service (NPWS) is conducting a survey of koala numbers within Brisbane Water National Park and is asking for help

Pleased to read tribute

How pleasing it was to read the tribute to the late, Cath Gissane, RIP.

I am sure she was a truly caring person and one who loved and respected nature.

Gardening is my hobby and I had six trees planted in our garden this spring.

I am so pleased to see the family name, Gissane, in Australia.

Gissane is a name in our family on my mother's side.

My grannie's maiden name was Gissane. They were originally from County Limerick, Ireland.

It is not a common name and in County Kerry there are Kissanes.

But my Grannie always said it was never spelled with a "K"...it is Gissane.

My grandmother's sister was Mary Catherine Gissane and there were many brothers and sisters.

I was also told as a young schoolgirl that there were members of the family who sailed to Australia generations

I only wish my mom and grandmother were here today to read the tribute to Cath Gissane in the Peninsula News as I did.

I came across the name of a Timothy Gissane on the web which stated he left Ireland for Australia in the mid-19th century, married, settled down and not much more data was available.

I would love to hear from a member of the Australian branch of the Gissanes.

I would also love to know more about Cath Gissane.

My Grannie's sister, Mary Catherine Gissane, was a midwife in Ireland.

The Gissanes of Limerick were also saddlers, made saddles and leather goods, etc.

They were also marble masons who worked on St. Mary's Cathedral in Limerick City and St Colman's Cathedral in County Cork.

When time permits I would love to hear from Australia.

I am in the US and I know there is about a 14-hour time difference.

At present, we are in the middle of torrid weather - 95

So hello to all of you "down under" and a special hello to the family of the late Cath Gissane,

Road realignment not endorsed

I wish to respond to a letter published in the "Forum" on May 6 (Stephen Laming, Horsfield Bay) as it appears have resulted in unnecessary concern and confusion some residents of Horsfield Bay.

In the letter in question, Mr Laming has chosen to comment in detail upon one of the possible options for upgrading Woy Woy Rd discussed at a recent value management study involving community and council participants as if it is an endorsed council proposal.

Council has in fact endorsed in-principle a proposal not involving the realignment of Woy

Woy Rd through the bends near Horsfield Rd.

The endorsed proposal would actually bypass this locality via a new road through the Brisbane Water National Park.

There has been some preliminary investigations undertaken of the option of realigning the bends in Woy Woy Rd near Horsfield Rd as a possible short-term improvement.

However, no options for such short-term works have been considered by council at this

In his Forum letter, Mr Laming has sought to develop a detailed criticism of the option of realigning the bends near Horsfield Rd proposal based upon engineering, environmental and other concerns despite the fact that a detailed design for the project does not exist.

As a consequence his criticisms are not only presumptive that it is a proposal council may eventually support, but also presumptive of the shortcomings of its detail.

You may be assured that any proposal as significant as the possible realignment of Woy Woy Rd would be the subject of a full and balanced assessment of options in association with all community stakeholders.

A man with two dreams

Woy Woy in 1964.

Harry was about average height, clean-cut, and he had a quiet and reserved nature, but when the chips were down, he could be very tough and determined.

Harry Ihlein was president of the Woy Woy branch of the Australian Labor Party, in the 60s and he had two projects and two

One dream was to get Kevin Dwyer, the Labor candidate into State Parliament.

This was Kevin's second attempt to win the State seat.

Harry was Kevin's campaign manager and they worked like Trojans to win the seat.

With his determined streak truly showing, Harry drove himself and the other branch members to exhaustion in the effort to get the Labor candidate elected.

Unfortunately, at that time, the then Labor government was worn out, and the Liberals under a new rising star, Robin [Bob] Askin, were pushing Labor to the

This situation, combined with the DLP vote gave Kevin Dwyer little chance.

Kevin was beaten and the Labor government fell.

The other project of Harry's,

I first met Harry Ihlein at was one of turning the old Neilson Slipper factory in Railway St, Woy Woy, into a Labor club.

> Harry and his committee had Millers brewery interested, had the required number of members and some capital.

He then tried to get some Labor Ministers involved in the scheme, regretfully, all to late. The Labor government was gone and the club never got off the ground. Harry had put all his dreams in the one basket, the election and

He had resigned his job in the Fire Brigade as a sail maker, in the hope that Kevin Dwyer would win the election and Harry would be his electorate secretary.

It was not to be and Harry dropped out of the Labor Party, his dreams shattered.

However, he was far from being destroyed, and he always kept a level head and a shrewd sense of humour.

Tragically, Harry's life was cut short in a car accident at Ettalong Beach.

Harry was like one of those unforgettable people.

He was friendly, good-natured, resolute and determined.

Rectify water quality problems

If one lives at Woy Woy Bay, it is particularly interesting to read (Peninsula News #69, June 17) that the water quality there is one of the poorest in the Gosford area.

Oil slicks are to be seen sometimes, no doubt due to the increasing number of motorboats using the Bay.

The wash from these vessels is also largely responsible for the undermining of the banks of the

This also adds to the problems caused by the developed foreshores, which are now almost completely covered in

The steep hills behind are being denuded of trees and other natural vegetation.

This results in weeds, pesticides, fertilizer and rubbish being washed straight into the Bay when there are heavy rains.

There is little natural vegetation left to filter this water and it is unable to soak into the soil as it did formerly.

Let us hope that we can rectify the problems as soon possible, otherwise our children will miss out on this wonderful area and the rich bio-diversity which we have been enjoying.

This recommendation was adopted at a later council meeting.

The council's director of environmental planning, Ms Louise Gee, would arrange for council's bushcare officer, Ms Robyn Urquhart, to discuss with Umina Public and High Schools, the future management of the endangered ecological community on the school grounds.

Brisbane Waters was most satisfying

Brisbane Waters Private Hospital in Woy Woy has won the number one ranking in New South Wales for overall patient satisfaction, according to the HCF health fund's most recent patient satisfaction survey.

"This is an extensive survey embracing both public and private hospitals throughout NSW and winning the number one ranking is a great tribute to the wonderful staff we have working at Brisbane Waters," commented hospital chief executive Mr Graham McGuinness.

"I believe what set us apart was the fact that our staff really appreciate that a hospital stay can be a daunting experience and they constantly go out of their way to do that little bit extra for their patients.

particularly "This important when it comes to keeping patients well Informed of their treatment and progress and provides them with a greater sense of assurance and comfort," Mr McGuinness said.

Brisbane Waters has consistently performed well in the survey, but this is the first time it has won.

"Given the wide range of surgery it performs and the complexity of its services, the result is very satisfying to its dedicated and hard working staff."

Long-time Umina resident Joyce McCabe, born November 22, 1916, died on June 20, aged 86.

Friend Mrs Marj Cleere said Joyce had been a regular visitor to the Peninsula, before she retired in 1976.

She then moved to the Peninsula and took a "strenuous role" with a group of other retirees working out of Alice Ranson cottage, where the volunteers created emergency accommodation, a women's refuge, a housekeeping emergency service, shopping for incapacitated, and even "Her last big community effort was to work with Rose at the Senior Citizens.

"This much-travelled lady always thought of others and managed to return with lots of

Joyce McCabe

'little somethings' for everybody.

"She could be remembered for her somewhat abrasive manner whilst getting the job done but inspired others to work now and play later.'

Damage reported at Burrawang Reserve

Burrawang Bushland Reserve was damaged with the construction of this illegal hut

David Steele retires

Lawyer and past president of the Central Coast Law Society, Mr David Steele, has retired from practice and from Peninsula Law on June 30.

David's retirement comes after some 27 years of private practice as a solicitor of the Supreme Court of New South Wales, 25 years of which has been spent serving the people of the Central Coast.

David graduated from Sydney University Law School with a Bachelor of Laws in 1976 and was admitted as a solicitor of the Supreme Court of New South Wales on August 12, 1976.

He worked initially at Bowral and then moved to the Central Coast in 1978 to take up a position as an employed solicitor with Robert L Ferry of Woy Woy.

David became a partner in Robert L Ferry & Steele, Solicitors, the next year and soon established himself as one of the leading lawyers on the Central James Walker joined David's firm in 1988 and became a partner in the firm which became Steele & Walker Solicitors following the retirement of Bob Ferry from the practice in 1989.

Steele & Walker later merged with Bingham Turnell Corah, Solicitors, of Woy Woy on July 1, 1999, to form the firm of Peninsula Law.

David retired as CEO and as a partner on July 1 last year but remained a consultant with the firm effectively up until June 30.

Mr Alan Bingham of Peninsula Law said: "His experience in commercial, land and environment, conveyancing and retirement village law was second to none

"David's record of service to his vast legion of clients and to the people of the Central Coast is exemplary.

"He played Rugby Union for the Woy Woy Rugby Club and the Central Coast representative team for many years; too many years, some may say.

"He has been involved, over a period of almost three decades, in the sporting, business and charitable life of the Central

"He was a touch footballer, basketball and squash player of

"David, in recent years, developed a passion for yachting and sailed around the South Pacific for some seven months in 2001, covering literally thousands of nautical miles in all conditions (which was) no mean feat.

"David's contribution to the law, to the firm of Peninsula Law and to the people of the Central Coast will be sorely missed.

"We hope that the members of the Central Coast Law Society will join with his former partners and staff of Peninsula Law in wishing David all the very best in his retirement and fair sailing into the future," Mr Bingham said.

Letter, June 26

The Burrawang Bushland Reserve Committee is calling for public assistance following "significant damage" done recently to plants in the reserve in Hillview St, Woy Woy.

A camouflaged hut made from trees cut from the reserve was found built into a large hole dug into the ground.

After council workers dismantled the hut, several other areas of the reserve had numbers of trees cut down, more holes dug and much vegetation was trampled.

Most of the damage occurred in the part of the reserve that was recently classified as an "endangered ecological community" - Umina Coastal Sandplain Woodland.

Committee members have expressed concern at the destruction

"We would like the reserve's native plants and wildlife saved for all residents to enjoy," said committee convenor Mr Mark Snell.

"The glossy black cockatoo and the swift parrot are just two of the endangered birds that use the reserve's plants for food and shelter."

Anyone with information about the damage done to the reserve is asked to contact council bushcare officer Mr Geoff Bakewell on 4325 8169.

Criminal activity in the reserve should be reported to police.

World tour from England ends at Ettalong

As a young butcher from Torquay, Peter Hutton left England in 1969 on a twoyear working tour of the world.

He arrived in Australia in 1970. He fell in love with the country and has remained here since.

Peter is now celebrating his 15th year trading as Peter Hutton and Son, family butchers, Picnic Parade, Ettalong.

He works with his 19-year-old son, Robert, who is a third-year apprentice, and butcher Alan Brooks.

Peter commenced trading in the store in 1988, having taken over from previous owner, Max Hayes, who moved into the video rental business at Kincumber and Wyoming.

It was Peter's first venture in his own business after having worked in butcher shops in the Kings Cross area and also having managed large butcher shops in centres including Warringah Mall.

Peter was originally a pork butcher as pork was always cheaper than beef or lamb in England and was therefore in greater demand.

He has seen many changes in the industry over the past 30 years.

"Until the early eighties, butchers were not allowed to trade before 7.45am or after 5.30pm and had to close on Saturdays at noon even though there were often queues formed wanting to buy their products", Peter said.

Peter Hutton and son Robert at their butcher shop in Ettalong

"With the introduction of meat sales in supermarkets, this soon changed, as the supermarket would be open to sell other items and had to have their meat section under wraps.

"The problem then was that many people bought their meat at supermarkets because it was more convenient to do so while doing the rest of their shopping and many butcher shops closed as a result", he said.

"Butchers are now clawing back some of that business because many supermarkets no longer have butchers on site and buy their meat pre-cut, packaged and gas sealed, often having come from interstate slaughter houses.

"We buy only the best quality meat and pay a premium price for it, but we believe that our customers appreciate the better quality even though it can be dearer than supermarket meat," Peter said.

One change in recent years was the increased restrictions on temperature control of displays.

"Open displays are no longer acceptable as the temperature at the top of the meat cannot be kept low enough without cold air curtains as can be found in supermarkets

"Butchers have therefore had to change their shop displays to enclosed refrigerated cabinets at great expense", he said.

"Another change now means that we no longer see Council health inspectors but Safe Food Inspectors from the Federal Department of Health.

"This national control is good for consistency of standards around Australia and I expect it to be extended to all fresh food outlets in the near future including take away and fast food outlets and restaurants"

As well as being a butcher, Peter has an interest in early British military activities.

His alter ego is Sgt William Baker from the royal naval ship Sirius under Lt Capt. Tench in the NSW Corps of Marines.

In this guise, Peter can be found in command of a platoon of men in British military marine uniforms from the period 1788 to 1802.

The Corps donate its time educating people, as well as parading and firing muskets at events such as Woy Woy's Australia Day celebrations.

Bin-cleaning service starts garbage bin-cleaning service has started on the Peninsula.

Trading as Bin Aroma, the service visits clients on council pick-up day and thoroughly cleans their bin.

Company director Ms Susan Leith-Miller said: "The last thing I expected to be doing in life was running a bin-cleaning business.

"But the minute we established Bin Aroma the response told us we were onto something."

Bin Aroma consists of three people: Susan Leith-Miller, Josephine Caiman and Melvyn Lahina.

"It's Melvyn who does the grunt and grind of the job.

"He's the one who comes around to the house with the cleaning rig, squirts and sprays and deodorises your bin."

Melvyn, who worked for 20 years as a fireman, perfected the cleaning system unique to Bin Aroma, according to Ms Leith-Miller.

"The system was designed in close consultation with the Gosford and Wyong Councils, who have been supportive of the

"We carry our water, filter and recycle it and are environmentally

"The deodorant is a natural citrus base with no artificial chemicals.

Mr Lahina said: "I take it personally if I can't get a bin

"It was all those years as a fireman, working with pipes and gauges, hoses and water and pumps, that gave me the experience to know what to do.

Ms Leith-Miller said: "The service is proving popular with the elderly, who simply don't have the physical strength to upturn their unwieldy stinking bins, and with young mums, bedevilled by the age-old problem of dirty nappies."

Comedy festival draws interest from afar

An article published in the Sydney Morning Herald about the Spike Milligan Comedy Festival has drawn inquiries from many parts of Australia as well as from England and Ireland.

Festival Committee chairman Cr Chris Holstein said that he was amazed at the number of calls that came in.

"We had calls from many Sydney radio stations as well as from Brisbane, Melbourne and Darwin," he said.

"This was a great opportunity to promote Woy Woy and the Festival far and wide.

"We also had calls from BBC

Television, Radio 5 in Britain and from radio stations in Belfast and Dublin.

"One radio commentator in Ireland said that he didn't know that Wov Wov was a real place.

"I thought it was made up like Puckoon,' he said".

"Today we have arranged for festival committee members, including Spike's brother, Des Milligan, to be interviewed by Ms Kathy Marks, the Australasian correspondent for the British newspaper, The Independent," Cr Holstein said.

The festival will be held on the Peninsula in October.

Church celebrates 20 years

Hardys Bay Community Church will celebrate its 20th birthday on Sunday, July 27.

The celebration is to be held in the Hardys Bay Church at 114 Araluen Dr, Hardys Bay, starting at 9:30am.

The morning will recognise the activities of the church over the last 20 years such as kids clubs, youth groups, sporting teams, men's and women's events plus the speaking of hope to people from God's word.

A morning tea will follow the celebration with a huge birthday cake for all to share in.

Hardys Bay Community Church and Coast Community Church grew from the one church at Hardys Bay but now meet at two different locations.

Hardys Bay Community Church meets at Hardys Bay, while the Coast Community Church meets at Kincumber.

New show at theatre

Dance City Theatricals, a attached group Peninsula Dance and Theatre School, is putting on a new show called "Seven".

It is a show in a musical theatre style and is suitable for adults and older children.

Three double passes to the show are available for the first three callers to 4342 1382.

The show will be playing at the Peninsula Theatre on Friday, July 18, at 8pm and on Saturday, July 19, at 2pm and 8pm.

Producer and director Angela Denman said: "This is a musical that has something for everyone.

"Take a light hearted journey through the seven deadly sins, with musical highlights from 42nd St. Cabaret, Sweet Charity and Moulin Rouge, as well as songs from the top 40 dance charts."

Presented by Dance City Theatricals, most of

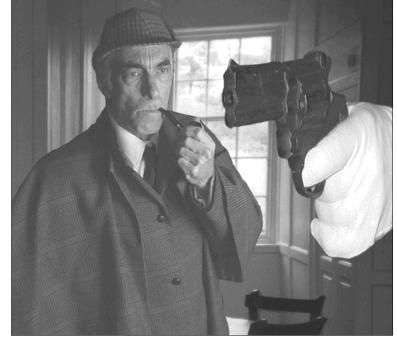

Some of the cast members of the musical "Seven" performers are high school students.

"Who needs Australian Idols when we have all the talent right here on the Coast," said Ms Denman.

Mystery and humour at Little Theatre

Wov Wov Little Theatre is putting on a production of Murdered to Death, written by Peter Gordon and to be directed by John Hickey.

Publicity officer Steve Cummings said: "This very funny who dunnit combines mystery and humour in the story of a bumbling detective and his offsider attempting to solve the chilling murders in the manor house

"This piece is set in the 1930s and a bizarre group of characters will keep you guessing until the final curtain.

"Will the murderer be unmasked before everyone else has met their doom? Or will audiences die laughing first?"

The play will run at Peninsula Theatre at 8pm on Fridays August 1, 8 and 15, and Saturdays August 2, 9 and 16 and at 2pm on Sundays, August 3, 10 and 17.

Ticket prices are $16 adult, concession $12 and child $5 (up to 15 years).

Woodie Guthrie story at folk club

The Troubadour Folk Club will present "Hard Travellin' - The Woody Guthrie Story" with Peter Hicks and Us Not Them, at the Peninsula Theatre on Friday, July 25, at 8pm.

Folk club committee member Frank Russell said: "Woody Guthrie was the greatest folk singer of his generation and has directly influenced performers such as Jack Elliott, Bob Dylan, Bruce Springsteen, and Billy Bragg.

"Woody Guthrie sang songs of struggle and political action.

"Without Woody Guthrie the folk revival of the nineteen sixties would not have happened," he said.

Mr Russell said Peter Hicks was a singer-songwriter in the tradition of Woody Guthrie.

"His songs have their roots in the everyday lives and experiences of everyday people, and in the issues of greatest concern to us all.

"He sings about the environment, about the need for world peace and the causes of

"But ultimately, he delivers a message of hope.

"His vision is of a world where people can live and work together in harmony and cooperation, not conflict.

"Us Not Them are Jason and Chloe Roweth, who are regarded as among the finest interpreters of Australian traditional material and are renowned for their beautiful and sensitive arrangements.

"Us Not Them will also be performing songs from their new album As Good as New."

Also performing on the evening will be Bluesman Earlwood Greg, and Jan Couchman's Harp Ensemble.

Eisteddfod held at Peninsula Theatre

The Peninsula Theatre has hosted the latest Central Coast Eisteddfod sessions.

Performers from many parts of the Central Coast competed in the popular vocal solo section, held daily from July 4 to 11,.

A qualified adjudicator from Sydney judged contestants and each performer received extensive comments on their performance.

Trophies were presented to the first three place getters for each age group in each section.

The popular vocal solo section was open to children and adults.

The youngest age group was nine years and under but the majority of performers were in their mid-teens.

Musical categories covered included pop, rock, rock & roll, jazz, blues, contemporary Christian, country, country rock, country and western, bush, musical theatre, contemporary, children's film and music theatre, and rock opera.

This year marks the 28th anniversary of the eisteddfod on the Central Coast.

An example of each event was seen on July 10 when 11 entrants, all female, competed in section 804 being for 14 year old entrants in the popular vocal solo contemporary own choice, specially restricted section.

First place was awarded to Emma Vile, second to Nickie Thomsen and third to Hailie Markham.

This was Nickie's fourth performance on the day and only her first year of singing.

"I do drama at school and want to do musicals as a career so I thought I'd give this a go," she

"So far I've received highly commended certificates for each performance and to get a trophy and second place was more than I expected."

Convenor of the "popular vocal" competition, Mrs Gail Beaman, was enthusiastic about the high level of talent on the Central Coast.

"We are also pleased with the quality of adjudicator that we have had.

"Today we have Jonathan Mill, one of Australia's leading musical theatre performers

"He has appeared in Buddy, West Side Story, Cabaret and Mick and Mabel and has written and directed many shows including three Sydney Cabaret Convention winners," Mrs Beaman said.

Pam hangs up her dancing shoes

Pam Lovett, principal of the long-established Lovett's Dance Academy, has "hung up her dance teaching shoes" having sold the business to two of her former dance teachers.

Kim Bemet has taken over the Jazz and Tap dance teaching side of the business and is continuing to teach under the Lovett's name until the end of the year at the Umina Community Hall

Nicole Wilkinson will continue to teach ballet, modern and contemporary dance styles at her new studio in Mutu St, Woy Woy.

The two groups will continue to work together and plan to join together at the end of the year for their combined annual

The studio opened in early

At age 22, Nicole has been teaching at the academy for four and a half years while at the same time completing her qualifications.

She started dance training in classical ballet and modern styles at the age of three.

She gained exceptional marks in all grade and higher-grade Royal Academy of Dance (RAD) examinations, receiving honours gradings for her major examinations

She now holds the RAD

Registered Teacher's Status having completed her studies in August last year, passing with distinction.

Nicole also holds certificate 3 and 4 in child studies and a first aid certificate.

Almost all of Nicole's students last year achieved a distinction in RAD ballet examinations and a rare 100 per cent mark was awarded to 10-year-old student, Laura Green.

Show teams aged 10 years and under and 12 years and under entered the Baulkham Hills Eisteddfod in June achieving first and second in modern with the two dances performed by the younger group and a first for the older group in both modern and contemporary dance.

"This has been a life-long dream of mine and I couldn't let the opportunity go by when the offer arose", Nicole said.

"To have my own business teaching the students that I have been working with for so long is more than I could have hoped

"I borrowed as much money as I could with the support of my father, found new premises and converted it into a studio", she said.

A major expense was the provision of a non-slip, smooth, professional dance floor.

The interior has been repainted and the frontage, which was a roller door, has been transformed into a wall with windows

An air conditioner, balance bars and mirrors complete the effect.

The school is currently open Tuesday and Thursday evenings as well as all day Saturday.

Nicole, who drives to the school from Newcastle each day, is keen to expand the school.

It currently has a wide range of curriculum options and caters for ages ranging from 3 years old to adult.

Examinations are due in July after which the school starts on concert work

New students can join at any time during the year and boys are most welcome.

Tenders called for campus upgrades

Tenders have been called for the $5.23 million Stage One upgrades at the Woy Woy and Umina campuses of Brisbane Water Secondary College.

Member for Peats Ms Marie Andrews said the work would provide major improvements at both campuses.

"There has been extensive consultation with local communities to ensure they have maximum input into the design and siting of the upgrades," said Ms Andrews.

Stage One of the upgrade at the Woy Woy campus would provide a new administration building, conversion of existing administration offices to a special education unit, two new car parks, and landscaping and siteworks.

Stage One of the upgrade at Umina Campus would include a new movement studio, performance workshop and change rooms.

There would be an upgraded cricket oval, a new covered outdoor learning area (COLA) over new games courts, a new bicycle compound, new outdoor learning spaces, and landscaping and siteworks.

"These upgrades will ensure Brisbane Water Secondary College is equipped with top-ofthe-range facilities, enabling the students and staff to pursue educational excellence," said Ms Andrews.

"These projects will also help to build a strong economy by creating 100 jobs.

Teachers brush up on computer skills

Teachers at Pretty Beach Public School were released from teaching for a half day on June 27 to participate in a computer skills development activity.

Teachers learned about the EduWeb program which will lead towards the development of computer-generated student portfolios.

Casual teachers were employed for the day so that educational programs were not interrupted.

The school's focus on technology this year has enabled teachers to become skilled in using Publisher and Excel.

These skills will be used in both lesson presentation and administration.

Education Week, to be held in week eight of term three, will see students exhibiting computerrelated learning skills to parents.

The next meeting of the school's School Environment Committee will be held at 3.15pm on Thursday, July 24, to discuss restoration and revegetation of the degraded creek-bed behind the school's weather-shed.

The school is applying for an Ecoschool grant to fund the project.

Year 5 and 6 students developed a vision for the sustainability of the school on May 26.

The vision stated: 'We, the students of Pretty Beach Public School, appreciate and value the unique and special environment that makes up our school.

"We are committed to manage and care for it so that it thrives.'

Bowls teams reach finals

Everglades men's bowling championships are progressing with pairs and triples reaching semis and quarter finals.

In the pairs, Glen and Ted Hewson have won through to the finals after a hard-fought semi against Brian Crawley and John Byrzinski.

The other semi final will feature Jon Gibbon and Laurie Powell playing Shane Slavin and lan Street.

The Triples quarter finals have been played with one exception -Brian Crawley's team to play Bruce McDonald.

The other semi-finalists are teams led by Gordon Wilmott, Howard Franklin and Barry

The final of the minor singles was played between Kevin Smith and Eric Jackson, with Kevin finishing too strong and winning the first of many future championships.

The June long weekend saw a the Saturday with the team of Ray Fairleigh, Ralph Davis and Bruce McDonald winning from M Dickinson, N Leonard and B Selwood in the 'winners of the winners" and the team of N Mellish, K Langwitz and H O'Neill winning the "winners of the runners-up".

The Monday pairs saw the combination of N Tiernan and R Mason finishing on top in front of C Arthur and D Gillett with R Reilly and G Pope finishing a close third.

Everglades RSL bowlers went through the pennant season undefeated and won the No 2 pennant.

The teams in the final were Sam Andrews, Ron Reilly, Bruce McDonald and Roger Ford with George Pope, John Partridge, Jack Ghiggino and Barry O'Connor.

The overall winning margin was seven shots which was enough to bring the flag home, the first one since 1988.

Phil becomes life member

Phil Harding has been awarded life membership of the Umina Surf Club for his "outstanding service to the club over 17 consecutive years".

Phil became a club member in 1986 when his daughter joined the club and he took on the role of Under 6 team manager.

Over the following 17 years, he has held many different roles, often several at any one time.

These roles have included radio officer, patrolling member, water safety co-ordinator, junior branch delegate, awards coordinator, branch gear steward, First Aid officer, competitions officer and secretary.

Along the way Phil's commitment to surf lifesaving has been recognized with a Ministerial Sports Appreciation Award, several Outstanding Patrol Service awards, Level 1 and 2 Official's accreditation, Senior and Junior Club Member of the Year awards as well as induction into the Central Coast Surf Lifesaving's Board of Examiners this year.

The Umina United Soccer Club girls W14B team

Double-header played at Umina

Umina United Soccer Club played a double header of women's teams at Umina Soccer Field, Melbourne Ave, Umina, on Sunday, July 7.

The newly-formed Women's Under-14B team and the Women's All-Age 3 team and are currently placed fifth and third respectively.

The Under-14s had a one-all draw against the Gosford team and the All-Age 3 teams played Southern Ettalong United eventually winning three goals to

Club president Barry Cole said:

"Umina Soccer Club has been growing every year. "It was only a matter of time before we fielded girl only teams.

"The girls in the Under-14 teams are so devoted to soccer that most of them play in mixed teams on Saturday as well," Barry added.

Umina Soccer Club now boasts 614 registered players, is the largest on the Peninsula and is the seventh largest out of the 22 clubs across the Central Coast, he said.

"Next year, we will be looking for more girls who want to play soccer in all girls' teams, especially in the junior competition from 10 to 16 years.

"We are hoping to fill an under-16 girls team which will be girls from 14 to 16 years old," Barry said.

There are over 11,000 players registered soccer players on the Central Coast.

Rowing club enters first race

Brisbane Water Rowing Club officially began its competitive life on Sunday, July 6.

The club entered one women's crew and two individual events in the UTS-Haberfield Novice

Participants and supporters travelled to Haberfield in Sydney on a fine sunny day in perfect conditions for competing and viewina.

The women's crew, of Melissa Morris, Monica Copeland, Jody Mackay, Margaret Cullen, and Debbie Walters as coxswain, rowed well in their first race in a quad scull.

A late replacement was needed after one of the crew was injured in a basketball accident a few days before the race.

The crew finished within the field, doing themselves, the club and the Central Coast proud in their first outing.

Their coach, David Cullen. feels they will improve with further training, better equipment and when more experienced they will not need to carry the extra weight of a coxswain in a coxless event.

Kevin Hughes also competed in his maiden race (single scull) and finished within the field.

Kevin started well in this large field and after having to stop when another sculler converged into his path, he managed to regain speed and kept up to the

David Cullen sculling on the day

David Cullen said: "With confidence and exposure to more he was able to stay in front of the racing, he will settle better and be pack due to his excellent able to concentrate on technique.

"He shows great potential for the future." David Cullen was also competitive in the open event.

David faced a large field of contestants entering this race but once a clean start was achieved, technique and relentless training

The club is enthusiastic to compete in the next regatta and is anticipating more crews entering.
