Local real estate sales 'unaffected'

A Woy Woy real estate agency has claimed that Peninsula property market has been relatively unaffected by the global economic crisis

Wilson's Estate Agency has claimed it has been "business as usual" with 54 local property sales valued at $19 million over four months from July.

The highest number of sales over the four-month period was 17 in July, valued at more than $6

Agent Mr Troy Howe said: "In what most are describing as a tough market, our team is consistently selling properties at a price that our owners are very happy with."

Mr Howe said now was the time for residents interested in selling their property to make preparations before the busy festive season.

"With Christmas and the New Year fast approaching now is the time to prepare your home for sale if you plan to make the move early in 2009," Mr Howe said.

"With solicitors, conveyances and the print advertising media closing on December 19 and reopening on January 12, it is an advantage to have your property on the market whilst many of the competition will be waiting until January or February."

Outbreak of tick poisoning

The Peninsula has suffered an outbreak of tick poisoning in dogs and cats this year, according to local vets.

Umina veterinarian Dr Peter Howe said: "The vets at Leslie St Veterinary Clinic have experienced a very high incidence of tick poisoning this season."

He said that early detection was

"When the tick bites, it secretes saliva which contains deadly toxins, so it is important to look for symptoms of paralysis tick daily.

"Some symptoms to look out for are difficulty in breathing or rapid breathing, loss of appetite, change of barking sound, difficulty standing or getting up, coughing, vomiting or retching.

"If your pet shows any of these signs, seek veterinary help immediately and keep your pet cool, calm and in a dark place.

"Do not offer water or food as pneumonia and breathing difficulties may occur."

Dr Howe said more than 75,000 dogs and cats are poisoned in Australia each year and the paralysis tick is "quiet common" in the area.

"Once diagnosed, the vet will give your pet anti-toxin serum sedation for respiratory complications," Dr Howe said.

"To protect your pet, try and keep your pet away from bushy

Gift donations wanted

The Salvation Army and the Smith Family are calling on Peninsula residents to donate a gift in Woy Woy to help support families in need this Christmas.

According to publicity officer Mr Roger Christie, more than 154 gifts have been placed under the Woy Woy Kmart wishing tree following the second week of donations.

The Woy Woy store is hoping to receive more than 2000 gifts by Christmas.

With record numbers of Australians expected to seek welfare assistance this Christmas following the economic downturn, charities such as The Salvation Army and The Smith Family are preparing ahead of the festive season to support the thousands of people in need.

Executive director of The Smith Family Mr Paul Henderson said even the smallest gift can make an enormous difference to someone without the means to enjoy Christmas.

"We're all starting to think of Christmas presents for our loved ones but it's important that we also remember those who may be struggling at this time of year," Mr Henderson said.

Mr Henderson said young teenage boys are often forgotten about in the appeal and encouraged residents to consider this demographic when donating gifts to the appeal.

"Teenage boys love to unwrap any sort of clothes, sporting gear or even books on Christmas Day, so we ask all people to keep them in mind when donating to the appeal," Mr Henderson said.

November has finished with a total rainfall of 73.2mm, 12.5 per cent down on the average of 83.6mm, according to figures supplied by Mr Jim Morrison of Woy Woy.

More than half of the month's fell over just two days: November 29 and 30.

Falls were recorded of 29.5mm on November 29 and 8.0mm on November 30.

November's rainfall was almost the same as for October which had 73.4mm.

Rain so far this year has remained just above average, with a cumulative total of 1188mm to the end of November, compared to an annual average of 1141 for the same period.

Just 31mm of rain in December would see the year finish with average rainfall figures.

average rainfall December is 77.7mm.

Recycling for Australia Day

Woy Woy will be the only location at Gosford Council's Australia Day events to provide recycling facilities.

Council resolved to proceed with its Best Practice Recycling program at Australia Day celebrations in Woy Woy despite council staff's recommendation against the recycling initiative.

According to the report, the estimated cost to proceed with recycling facilities at Australia Day celebrations in Woy Woy is $4950.

Cr Terri Latella said it was "extremely important" for council to provide recycling facilities at a large community event and to improve the attitudes and behaviour of community members.

"Findings from the previous Australia Day celebrations show we still need to educate the community and start to change their behaviour towards recycling," Cr Latella said.

"This should be a long-term goal for council and we should start with the Woy Woy event."

At its meeting on December 2, council also resolved to use volunteers to help with the event, provide a report to the Reduce Reuse Recycle Task Group to identify the amount of waste collected and the cost to council and to discuss strategies to minimise cost and increase recycling at future Australia Day events.

In July, a report to council found that only 101kg of recyclables was recovered for an expenditure of $8700, and of this nine kilograms was contaminated with non-recyclable matter.

"Placement of unmanaged recycling bins at smaller public events should not be considered given the contamination management issues, recycling returns and the costs for setup and servicing," the report stated.

"Having regard to the low quantity of recyclables collected at the trial event relative to the high future costs for the provision of the service, it is recommended that council not proceed with public place recycling at any future community events held by council."

The report found that the recycling trial that involved both staff time and the provision of external contractor services costing about $8700.

Only 101 kg of recyclables was recovered from the recycling bins, compared to 320 kg of waste recovered from the general waste bins, in which 61 per cent of recyclables were found.

The report stated that the cost of operating next year's Australia Day celebrations at Woy Woy, Gosford and Wagstaff as Waste Wise events would be $10,400.

"Having regard to the low quantity of recyclables collected at the trial event relative to the high future costs for the provision of the service, it is recommended that council not proceed with public place recycling at any future community events held by council," the report concluded.

No progress on Bulls Hill bypass

Gosford Council will have to wait to see whether Woy Woy Rd will be reclassified as a "State road" before the Roads and Traffic Authority (RTA) will look at the feasibility a bypass of Bulls Hill.

However, the council is yet to receive a response from the Minister for Roads, following a request on August 26 for an update on the progress of council's submission for its reclassification.

The council asked the RTA to conduct a feasibility study following a question without notice from Cr Craig Doyle at a council meeting on August 5.

The RTA has told council that Woy Woy Rd was a regional road and that the responsibility for its management and maintenance rested with council.

Council resolved on June 3 to begin negotiations with the then Minister for Roads Mr Eric Roozendaal and the RTA for the reclassification of Woy Woy Rd as a state road.

A meeting was held on June 26, between Mr Roozendaal, council's director of city services Mr Stephen Glen, the then deputy mayor Cr Chis Holstein and Member for

Gosford Ms Marie Andrews

A further submission was sent to the newly-appointed Minister for Roads Mr Michael Daley requested the reclassification of Woy Woy Rd.

A letter was also sent to the Minister for Roads referring on a submission and accompanying petition of 529 signatures received from The Bays Community Group in support of Woy Woy Rd being reclassified a state road and a bypass road being constructed around Bulls Hill.

Cr Doyle suggested the bypass road could be constructed as a dual lane one-way road (north bound) and the repaired section of Woy Woy Rd could handle south bound traffic movements.

The RTA has told council that it would continue with planning works on the State road network to improve access to the Peninsula through the upgrade of the intersection of the Central Coast Hwy and Woy Woy Rd, Kariong, and the upgrade of the intersection of the Central Coast Hwy with Brisbane Water Dr and Manns Rd, West Gosford.

Developer refund results from 'impecuniosity'

The developer of the North Pearl estate in Umina Beach has escaped a requirement to construct a pedestrian bridge, due to council's "impecuniosity".

Gosford Council will now refund $75,000 to Bruce Kerr Pty Ltd, as well as accumulated interest.

When originally approving the subdivision, the council had required a road to be constructed, across Ettymalong Creek, joining Lace Ave in North Pearl estate with Myola Rd.

This was deferred until the final stage of the subdivision, at which time the developer asked that the condition be waived.

Council decided at that time that the road bridge could be replaced with a pedestrian bridge.

The issue went to the Land and Environment Court in January 2006, where the developer was ordered to contribute $75,000 to the cost of a cyclist and pedestrian bridge to be built within three years.

The council was required to fund the balance of the cost of construction and to refund the contribution should the bridge not be built within the three-year

Gosford Council was told last week that council staff had been unable to obtain funding to cover the cost of a pedestrian bridge.

Representatives of the developer told council that they were unwilling to extend the timeframe beyond the end of January next year.

"We note that council's decision not to proceed with the construction of a pedestrian and cyclist bridge has been based on its impecunious circumstances," the letter to council stated.

The developer did not wish to pay additional funds "to assist council's impecuniosity" or meet with council representatives.

"Council has enjoyed our client's $75,000 since 24 January, 2006, and its return with its accumulated interest would be appreciated at council's earliest convenience."

In a report to council, council's director of city services Mr Stephen Glen stated that the cost of placing the matter before the Land and Environment Court prior to January 29 next year would be around $10,000.

"However, there is no guarantee of receiving a hearing date and without the support of the developer, there is little chance of either a greater payment being received, or an extension of time given to undertake the work," the report stated.

Even so, Crs Peter Freewater and Terri Latella moved that legal action be taken to extend the time, requiring an environmental assessment of the area and seeking community support to request Bruce Kerr Pty Ltd reconsider his decision.

The motion was lost.

Council then resolved to follow Mr Glen's recommendation to abandon the construction of the bridge and refund the developer $75,000 plus interest.

Gosford Council has received a petition with more than 165 signatures asking for a raised pedestrian crossing in Patonga.

According to a council report, the petition has called for council to construct the crossing from the corner of the Patonga Beach Hotel to the beachfront reserve and children's playground.

Amalgamation led to rehab closure, says action group

The amalgamation of Northern Sydney and Central Coast Area Health Services has led to the closure of Woy Woy Hospital's Rehabilitation Unit, according to Save Woy Woy Hospital Rehabilitation action committee coordinator Mr Bob Mudge.

"Money has been drained out of the Central Coast to support Northern Sydney," he said.

"The only reason we can see that the unit is being closed and the Central Coast losing 30 rehab beds is that North Sydney Central Coast Health is broke," Mr Mudge said.

Mr Mudge said the action committee has vowed its commitment to keep the issue of the rehabilitation unit closure alive despite the unit's confirmed closure on December 2.

"We have more support now than we did a couple of months ago as both residents and ex-patients find out that it has closed."

Mr Mudge said the action group would continue to pressure state government representatives and ask for the community's ongoing support.

Shadow Minister for Health Ms Jillian Skinner accused the Health Minister and State Labor Government of closing the Woy Woy rehabilitation unit despite an internal report recommending bed numbers be increased.

"Closing the Woy Woy rehabilitation ward is Labor's latest attack on frontline hospital services and indicates Labor is going to eventually close the hospital," Ms Skinner said.

"Only an incompetent State Labor Government would close a rehabilitation ward in an area whose population is rapidly ageing.

"This decision makes absolutely no sense.

"Woy Woy rehabilitation patients, who are already in need of treatment for their frailty, will now be carted in buses to Gosford, eating into valuable treatment time.

"Even the State Government's own report states: 'The amount of time spent travelling [is] impacting on actual therapy activity'."

According to a final report by Northern Sydney Central Coast Area Health Service on a review of rehabilitation and related services released in May last year, there exists "a significant shortfall in designated rehabilitation beds (and staffing) on the Central Coast".

"While there is a Department of Rehabilitation Medicine on the Central Coast, the service there is not resourced to meet current or future need, and as such service development is impacted," the report stated.

"Thecurrent15-bedrehabilitation ward at Woy Woy Hospital should be expanded to 30 beds.

"Expansion of the Woy Woy rehabilitation ward from 15 to 30 beds should be accompanied by the recruitment of an additional rehabilitation physician and a FTE registrar (advanced trainee in rehabilitation medicine)."

Mr Mudge said the Northern Sydney Central Coast Area Health's Clinical Services Strategic Plan and the internal report issued in May last year contradicted the closure of the Woy Woy unit.

"It is not just the 2008 clinical services strategic plan which contradicts the closure of the unit, but the leaked internal report of May 2007, which recommend 30 beds at Woy Woy and 30 beds at Wyong," Mr Mudge said.

"All of these issues - the aging population, the need for these services close to where people live and the need to improve outcomes for patients - are both in the report of May 2007 and the strategic plan for 2008."

Mr Mudge said the removal of the word "hospital" from its title was "a sure sign" that the hospital would be downgraded and eventually closed

Mr Della Bosca told State Parliament on November 26, that the Woy Woy Hospital would continue to provide quality health care services, despite "scaremongering" from Member for Terrigal Mr Chris Hartcher and his colleague Gosford councillor Jeff Strickson.

"Woy Woy Hospital is not closing.

"In fact, the area health service has recently established a new 20-bed transitional care unit at the hospital providing important subacute rehabilitation services," Mr Della Bosca said.

"This new unit has been established to provide relevant care to patients following a hospital admission.

"It allows older patients to recover properly with personalised health care programs and one-onone support.

"Transitional care is exactly that – specialised care provided to people following an illness or injury in the transition from hospital to home or aged care facility.

"In addition to the unit, Woy Woy Hospital provides outpatients facilities and a hydrotherapy pool serving the needs of the people of the Woy Woy area.

"The care and support that outpatients are currently receiving at Woy Woy Hospital will remain.

"Patients such as those with Multiple Sclerosis will continue to access community based occupational therapy, physiotherapy and hydrotherapy at Woy Woy Hospital."

Mr Della Bosca said a recent community meeting held on November 19, hosted by Mr Hartcher was "misleading and a cheap political stunt".

"Both Mr Hartcher and Mr Strickson have been using the most vulnerable of our community to score a cheap political point," Mr Della Bosca said.

"The area health service has been holding their own community information sessions to provide the community accurate information.

"I would encourage anyone who may have concerns about the new or existing services to contact the area health service for the correct advice."

Dredging motion voted down

A motion which would have allowed dredging of the Ettalong Channel was defeated at Gosford Council's meeting last week.

The motion would have rescinded the council's previous decision not to contribute to the cost of dredging, and cleared the way for the council to contribute $250,000.

The rescission motion was voted down by councillors Chris Holstein, Amy Houston, Chris Burke, Jeff Strickson and Craig Doyle, with councillors Terri Latella, Peter Freewater, Jim Macfadyen and Vicki Scott in favour.

Mayor Cr Chris Holstein confirmed to Peninsula News a hydrological study measuring the width and depth of the channel was conducted last week by NSW Maritime.

He said council would be able to analyse the findings of the study and determine an appropriate course of action.

Hands off Woy Woy Rehabilitation Hospital

An open letter to Premier Nathan Rees.

I was impressed that you knew exactly who I was and where I lived in Umina when I approached you at Toukley on November 3. I believe you are actually peeling back the scabs of oozing party political sores which have been left to fester for years.

Premier Rees, you have made your distaste of liars and the lies they tell us a matter of public record. So how is it possible that my community is being misled by influential people with political motives, motives which are in direct conflict with the current and future wellbeing of the Woy Woy Peninsula community and it's ageing population?

The NSW Health Code of Conduct's draconian provisions on public sector management is being used to frighten nurses and doctors into abandoning their democratic rights to freedom of expression. Citizens of NSW have become fearful of speaking out freely, hence their guarded comments have no real substance when arguing against millions of dollars spent on spin supported by thinly concealed conflicted interest.

The Woy Woy Peninsula is populated by an above national average of elderly people needing the services provided by our Woy Woy Rehabilitation Hospital. Under resourced by the State our important Woy Woy Rehabilitation Hospital may be, but the need to have this important community amenity remain here where citizens fought to build it has increased.

Many locals, including politicians the likes of John Della Bosca and Marie Andrews, have poor community spirit. Politics aside, how can they, as citizens accommodate the gutting of such an important amenity?

Both sides of State government have been involved in accommodating this process of removing a tax payer funded essential community asset from the Woy Woy Peninsula.

Doctors and Nursing staff along with cleaners and other support staff from the Woy Woy Rehabilitation Hospital will also eventually move away from the Peninsula seeking workplaces and their incomes will go with them. The NSW Health Code of Conduct, all 43 pages of it, is being abused as a tool to stifle Government employees from exercising their political freedoms against the results of wrong minded government actions.

My father lived a lot longer after breaking his femur because of the Woy Woy Rehabilitation Hospital and its location in our growing community.

The Minister for Health and others' suggestion of hurling elderly people who by the very nature of this service, are debilitated, into a people mover bus is cruel to say the least. A reasonably well person would find the schedule an excruciating ordeal. Complications are more likely to occur because of the unsuitable conveyance and precious time spent travelling. There is little dignity in many aspects of being dependent when you are frail or elderly.

This is just another 'herding' attitude being imposed on these people while claiming consultation has taken place. Show me the modelling that demonstrates this proposal is uplifting, safe and desirous for the very people who it is meant to enable, the very people who are being dispossessed by a systemic down grading of beds as far back as 2005 of what was once an assured future close to family.

Of course money is the driving force when these decisions are forced on us.

An open and transparent consideration of the reasons for this action has been denied taxpayers because the important part of the Garland report on which these decisions are being based is confidential to those who will eventually pay the price, us. Where is the honest accountable system which will satisfy the community?

There are too many incapable chiefs telling grass roots community members what to think where these matters are concerned and as for Mr. Della Bosca telling us not to be worried, that type of comment from a politician makes us truly anxious about what the future holds.

The residents of Woy Woy and Gosford have had enough of mismanagement of health services by our local Health bureaucrats and demand that the real health needs of the Peninsula be properly assessed and responded to.

We are not interested in an attempt to cut costs and shift necessary resources supported by an explanation which is shrouded in misleading bureaucratic jargon about effective resource use. The proposal is neither effective nor enhancing of services to Peninsula residents and we will neither accept it nor the underhand rationale that accompanies it.

Dredging considerations

The article on the dredging and the Chamber's criticism ("Chambercriticises dredging decision", November 24) is missing several facts, along with a misinterpretation of other matters.

Please allow me to clarify them. Firstly, as mayor, the priority has always been that of public safety.

The channel is the responsibility of NSW Waterways for vessel movement and the Department of Lands for the seabed.

Since March 2008, nothing has changed including the three councillors currently running the "Liberal excuse".

What did they do prior to the September election?

While Waterways deem the channel safe for use (no doubt they would have closed it otherwise), my issues have been about safety, cost and the sand removal proposal.

The dredging cost is not recoverable for council.

Council has spent over $3 million in the last six years in maintenance, upgrading of 22 public boat ramps and 53 public jetties under council's responsibility.

However, the government derives income from the 996 private jetty owners (annual lease fees of approximately $400 to $5000), mooring fees from the 1200 moorings in the area, licence and registration fees for 8000 boats in the area plus about $200,000 per annum in fishing licences.

Where have the tens of millions of dollars been spent on our waterways to the benefit of the users?

The $250,000 of our rate dollars would be better spent on our local roads, which is council's responsibility, rather than for the dredging

In fact, we need more dollars for

As for the removal of the sand, if the channel is dredged, we are advised it will be relocated a couple of hundred metres away and go back into the water and therefore the problem will come back.

As for the inference by Mr Wales about the expenditure on the Terrigal Trojans Club, he is wrong.

When Council considered the club's redevelopment, they agreed to pay for the replacement of the toilets, change room and storage area (now under the new clubhouse).

These do not only service sporting groups but are also used by tourists, fishermen and locals who use this area at The Haven every day.

The $1.3 million facility now includes public amenities which council paid for to the tune of $427,000 and this was resolved in 2006.

The final payment of $127,000, not $200,000 which was originally sought, was what council voted on.

As for my casting vote, the casting vote maintains the status quo.

No dredging was the status quo and honouring payment for the amenities was also status quo.

That said the latest detail on the channel is that Waterways are currently undertaking a hydro study to show the extent or lack of decline in the channel.

When the study is compared to the 2007 study, council will be informed of the extent of the problem.

Council will consider paying if safety proves to be a major factor and the State will not take the responsibility, but to do so roads, footpaths and libraries etc are put back by that value.

As mayor, be it right-handed, left-handed, Catholic, Protestant, Liberal or Labor my focus and responsibility is to the ratepayers, that comes first.

Keep the hospital open

So many people here on the Peninsula are objecting to any alteration to the Woy Woy Hospital that I'm hoping you are going on reporting the dissention among the very many residents.

I can't help wondering if those who designed the Wyong Hospital regretted it.

Why else would certain people try to encourage patients to go all the way there instead of the much more convenient Woy Woy Hospital?

Wyong is stuck on a piece of land which was no doubt cheap, away from the station, and special buses are needed to be able to access this out-of-the-way place.

How dictatorial can these people be who have been voted in by an unsuspecting population while all this secret negotiation was going to deprive the people in the Woy Woy area of the very facility that is most needed in this region.

As the hospital is right in the middle of this area, why should we be told to go all the way to Wyong for the treatment that has always been available here?

One can't help being cynical about such a deal.

Isn't it strange that so little information has been released and now people in charge say "Oh, it's a foregone conclusion"?

Surely this over-populated district can keep on rejecting the closure until the idea of selling the land to the developers becomes a grim prospect and sense returns to keep the hospital open for support and advice.

Ettalong in the 50s

Usually my inspiration to write comes when I am out running.

So, today I am running south along The Esplanade and what do I see?

Well, some twit has carved their name in the railing attached to that brand new platform recently constructed by Gosford Council at Ettalong.

Some of the shrubs have also been stolen leaving tell-tale holes and once again there is graffiti on the toilet block.

But wait there's more!

A couple of smashed bottles and fast food wrappers were scattered in the carpark even though a wheelie bin is located only a few metres away.

How awful and depressing.

Well, let us go back to the 50s: Lots of mums and dads having a drink or two on the veranda of Bannets Hotel right on the beachfront, now occupied by a motel.

It was a splendid building with a wide veranda which gave a wonderful view along the entire beach and across to Wagstaffe and beyond.

Families would be picnicking on

Just along The Esplanade you could hire rubber tyres, floats and canoes from Barney Tessup who did a roaring trade during the summer months.

Where the beer garden of the resort is now located was a wonderful milk bar which as far as I can recall was owned by the Iffland family who later acquired the boatshed next to the wharf used by the Palm Beach Ferry.

The milk bar had these wonderful mirrors and plaster mermaids behind the counter and along the walls.

I am sure that if the cafe still

No one knew anything about skin cancer in those days so Skol was about the only product on the market for sunburn apart from pink zinc which made you look rather ridiculous.

Some teenage girls used lashings of coconut oil which only accelerated the cooking process.

I was soon brought out of my reverie by a middle-aged couple leaving the viewing platform.

They thought that the view across to Wagstaffe and the bay was fantastic.

Indeed it was but as I pointed out to them that view had always been there but nowadays was mainly obstructed by a wall of weeds and shrubs of dubious origin.

All we need is an attractive and stable rock wall, grassy banks and some aesthetically pleasing picnic tables or shelter sheds to not only capitalise on our bountiful asset, but also encourage tourism.

I am positive that our visitors, particularly those from overseas, will be gobsmacked by that wonderful view.

The beginning of survival

I was recently recycling some papers when I noticed a warning statement from Chief Seattle.

I decided the statement needed publicity along with a suitable supporting comment.

David Suzuki presented a similar point of view in his co-authored book Wisdom of the Elders.

The following is a quotation from Chief Seattle's speech to the then American President in 1885:

"Continue to contaminate your bed and you will one night suffocate in your own waste.

"When the buffalo are all slaughtered, the wild horses all tamed, the secret corners of the forest heavy with the scent of many men and the view of the ripe hills blotted with talking wires, where is the thicket?

Thank you evening for Mary Macs

Volunteers and supporters of Peninsula charity Mary Mac's Place were treated to a Thank You Evening at the Ethel Cox Community Centre on November 24.

More than 100 community members attended the event to pay tribute to the valuable contributions volunteers of the charity make in providing nutritious meals to those in need.

Fr John Hill and steering committee members welcomed representatives from St John the Baptist Parish, St Vincent de Paul Society, Reuben F. Scarf Memorial Foundation, Everglades Country Club, Ettalong Memorial Bowling Club, Ettalong Beach War Memorial Club, Lion's Club of Woy Woy Peninsula and Rotary Club of Woy Woy.

Project officer Ms Robyn Schacht said the evening was a great opportunity to thank volunteers and community representatives for their help and support in ensuring a future for Mary Mac's Place.

"Mary Mac's Place, along with

many other charities throughout Australia and the world, has been adversely affected by the current downturn in the world-wide economy and the effects of the drought and the resultant rise in food prices in Australia," Ms Schacht said.

"As a consequence, over the past three months, Mary Mac's Place has experienced an increase in food costs of 117 per cent.

"The number of our guests has also increased by up to 83 per cent over the same period.

"Mary Mac's Place relies on donations from our supportive St John the Baptist Catholic Parish, local clubs, organisations and the wider community to meet the costs associated with the offering of a helping hand to our guests in the form of a nutritious lunch each week day.

Ms Schacht said Mary Mac's Place was "extremely grateful for the generous support" of small local businesses on the Peninsula.

"Their valuable contribution helps us to provide 90 meals a day for struggling families and individuals who are homeless or at risk of becoming homeless," Ms Schacht said.

For more information about Mary Mac's Place and how to become involved phone 4341 0584 or 0417 671 973.

Tender let for dementia upgrade

Gosford Council has accepted the tender of Artel Constructions for the upgrade the Meals on Wheels building in Woy Woy for use as a dementia day care facility.

Council accepted the company's tender at its meeting on November 4.

The tender for the upgrade of the facility in Woy Woy closed on October 17, with six tenders received.

The work would include the upgrading of the community building located at the corner of Ocean Beach Rd and McMasters Rd, Woy Woy, to a dementia day care facility, to provide a comfortable environment with an extensive quality fit out for dementia day care and food services.

The work would entail minor demolition, structural modifications and refurbishment of the entire facility, according to a council report.

The construction period is 24 weeks with the work scheduled to commence this month.

A council report stated that it was considered that the tender by Atrel Constructions presented the most positive benefits to council.

It also stated: "Artel Constructions Pty Ltd are a local construction company with extensive experience in quality fitouts and construction of community health related buildings for the NSW Department of Commerce".

The project is jointly funded by the Australian Government and the NSW Government Department of Ageing, Disability and Home Care to the value of $1.65 million.

Yoga team raises $2600

More than $2600 was raised by the Peninsula Yoga Aid team for children's charity Australia Save the Children on October 22.

"It was a cold, wet, windy morning when the Peninsula Yoga Aid team gathered in the dark at the Umina Beach Surf Club," team organiser Ms Helen MacNair said.

"It was the coldest October day in 17 years, apparently, when we all met at 6am.

"Luckily the team were inside.

"It was fabulous to watch the waves breaking on the beach as the day dawned.

"John Wilson was at the yoga expo the week before and discovered our little team of six was the talk of the town as we've managed to raise so much despite being only a few!"

Ms MacNair said the Peninsula Yoga Aid team would continue to raise funds for the Australia Save the Children charity until the end of November.

"We enjoyed our 108 sun salutes and the energy we created carried us through relatively effortlessly."

Children escape hospital

Seriously-ill and hospitalised children and their families attended the Starlight Escape Fun Day at Ocean Beach Holiday Park in Umina on October 23.

Park events and activities coordinator Ms Jess Henderson said the day was a "huge success".

"The kids had a blast doing things they normally don't have the chance to do, even with the cold weather," Ms Henderson said.

"Face painting, arts, craft and African drumming were just a few of the activities kids could choose from.

"Families enjoyed the excitement of the Central Coast Mariners appearance, followed by a fantastic show by the Australian Reptile Park.

"When the rain eased the kids braved the cold to enjoy a mini carnival with jumping castles, a clown, magician and a visit by the local fire brigade and police – a welcome change to the hospital environment.

"The NRMA's Mobile Member Centre truck was also in attendance with the latest in road safety information, kid's education games, X-box consoles and membership information."

The event was organised by the Starlight Children's Foundation with the support of NRMA Motoring and Services.

The Starlight Children's Foundation is an Australian charity dedicated to providing a positive distraction for seriously ill and hospitalised children.

The Starlight Escape Days are just one of the popular programs they offer to children and their families.

Christmas banners for light poles

Christmas banners will be temporarily installed on light poles along West St, Umina Beach, to ensure the retail centre has a "festive feel" during the holiday period.

Forty banners will be purchased by the Peninsula Chamber of Commerce as part of its commitment to the Umina Beach retail sector.

"We had initially made approaches to Gosford City Council for the funding, however council was not in a position to assist but have agreed to erect the banners on the chamber's behalf," said Chamber president Mr Matthew

Wales

"The cost will now be funded by the Peninsula Chamber of Commerce with an additional amount provided by the Ettalong Beach Heritage Committee as a reciprocating contribution following the successful staging of the Brisbane Water Oyster Festival at Ettalong Beach.

"This commitment follows the joint funding of the Ettalong Beach welcome signs last year between the Heritage Committee, the Chamber and several businesses.

"Four heritage designed welcome signs were installed to improve the ambiance of the retail centre.

"The Christmas banners in West St, Umina, will ensure that the main street has a festive feel during the holiday period and the Chamber looks forward to retailers decorating their premises for the Christmas break."

Mr Wales said the Chamber would be working on further projects early next year for the Woy Woy retail centre.

Peninsula dancers perform at Laycock

Several Peninsula residents who are students of NAISDA Dance College performed in the contemporary and traditional Indigenous dance concert entitled Tharramali at Laycock St Theatre on November 28 and 29.

The dance production was directed by the young emerging artist Tamara Pearson and choreographed by Graeme Murphy from the Sydney Dance Company and Stephen Page from Bangarra Dance Theatre.

According to Ms Pearson, the word tharramali means "the coming of the thunderstorm" where "the storm's passing will cleanse and renew the earth".

Mr Murphy choreographed Excerpts from Wilderness, an abstract piece representing modern ballet formalism where the sense of wilderness has many possible interpretations, ranging from options of landscape to sense of inner personal wilderness.

The Moth Duet choreographed by Mr Page explored the constantly shifting shadow that a moth casts when attracted to the light.

The program also contained new contemporary pieces from eminent Australian choreographers Graeme Watson and Jason Pitt.

Best known today as Australia's national Indigenous dance college, NAISDA sprang from a series of workshops in Redfern in 1975, pioneering Indigenous dance education in this country.

Currently NAISDA students are drawn from all over Australia, through talent identification programs and an annual weeklong audition program.

Youth theatre show in Pearl Beach

The Pearl Beach Youth Theatre group will present its first production entitled Little Gypsy Gaye at the Pearl Beach Memorial Hall in January next year.

Pearl Beach Progress Association communications officer Ms Lynne Lillico said the Pearl Beach Youth Theatre group began last year at a bus stop outside the Pearl Beach Memorial Hall.

"Meeting their children off the school bus, new residents with theatrical skills and parents of young children keen to be on stage decided to form a theatre group," Ms Lillico said.

"They called it the Bus Stop Theatre Craft and began meeting on a regular basis.

"Unfortunately, due to a number of unforeseen events, the group disbanded.

"Pearl Beach residents Diane Orton and Geoff Miller heard about the children's musical and contacted the Bus Stop members and began rehearsals for Little Gypsy Gaye earlier this year."

Ms Lillico said Little Gypsy Gaye was written in the 1930s with words by Molly Masters and music by Evelyn Wales.

"Members of the youth theatre group have adapted it slightly for a 21st century audience and for the cast of 12 children aged eight to 15 years and three adults," Ms Lillico said.

"The story is about the events that take place on the 10th birthday of a girl called Gaye. "During the one-hour musical Gaye and her fellow gypsies (mainly children) display their skills in music, dance, basket-making, mending pots and pans, hunting and fishing, as well as fortune telling."

At the end of each performance, a lucky door prize will be drawn and cast members in their colorful costumes will mingle with the audience as they sell inexpensive items at the Gypsy Market Place stall

"Members of the Pearl Beach community have provided their expertise and assistance with costume design, set preparation, choreography, musical direction and photography," Ms Lillico said.

"Musical director and production coordinator Diane Orton is delighted with the dedication and enthusiasm shown by the youthful cast members and promises a show that the whole family will enjoy."

Proceeds from the show will be donated to the Central Coast School for Children with Autism.

Performances will be held on Friday, January 9, and Sunday, January 11, from 2.30pm.

Commissioned by hairdressers

The work of Umina artist Ms Christine Armstrong can now be viewed in two Peninsula hairdressing salons.

Ms Armstrong was approached by the owner of Hair On Earth and Jackie's Hairdressing Salon to create artwork to feature in both Umina salons.

"These two paintings are the first pieces that I have had displayed permanently in a public place," Ms Armstrong said.

"Usually the commissions I do are for private collections.

"I think it's great to have local businesses supporting a local artist like me, especially when the art market isn't so great."

Ms Armstrong works from her home and studio in Umina and has been painting for more than 25 years.

"With the first painting, I was approached by Marie, who is my hairdresser and the owner of Hair on Earth at Umina Shopping Mall, to do a piece of artwork for her newly renovated salon," Ms Armstrong said.

"Marie wanted a painting of a young lady with long flowing hair in a graphic style and it was to look like ribbons of hair using her favourite colours.

"I added glitter and diamantes to give it texture and to pick up on the reflection of the mirrors in the salon permanently on the back wall of the salon."

"The painting is now hung

Ms Armstrong said she was surprised when another hairdressing salon owner contacted her to commission another painting.

"Word got around somehow and I was then contacted by the owner of Jackie's Hairdressing Salon to do another large painting to go on the back wall of the salon," Ms Armstrong said.

"This one is the largest commission piece I have done to date

"Jackie also wanted to have a lady with long flowing hair in black, red, purple, red, violet and burgundy colours.

"She wanted it to be a mixture of straight and curly hair in a realistic style

"Doing these two paintings has been a great way of combining my graphic design and illustration background and art together.

"I have found it very interesting to work with hairdressers as they too are very creative people with good clear ideas about what they want.

"So the challenge for me is, after meeting with the client and to discuss their ideas, successfully interpreting what these ideas are for their paintings.

"This has been a challenge I have really enjoyed."

Successful exhibition

The Ettalong Beach Arts and Crafts Centre's annual Christmas exhibition and sale was a "great success", according to publicity officer Ms Sharon Horder.

Ms Horder said hundreds of residents from in and around the Peninsula came to support the local art group over the two-day exhibition and sale on November 29 and 30.

"The Ettalong Beach Arts and Crafts Centre committee wishes to thank everyone including all the tutors, students and volunteers who gave their time and help freely to make our annual Christmas exhibition and sale a great success," Ms Horder said.

The exhibition and sale was held at the Peninsula Community Centre, Woy Woy.

Results of the raffle were drawn on November 30 by Member for Gosford Ms Marie Andrews.

Prize winners received a number of hand-made goods including a quilt, painting, pottery, mirror and Christmas hamper.

All winners have been notified and prizes collected.

Term one classes at the Ettalong Beach Arts and Crafts Centre will commence from February 2.

Teacher receives top award

Brisbane Water Secondary College Woy Woy Campus teacher Mr John Maxwell has received an award for excellent service to public education and training.

Mr Maxwell was one of two recipients from the Hunter Central Coast region recognised for the

The award was presented to Mr Maxwell and 37 other recipients from around the state in a special ceremony at William Wilkins Gallery, Sydney, on December 2.

Director-General for Education and Training Mr Michael Coutts-Trotter said the awards recognise fundamental truth that successful education and training is a partnership that involves all sorts of people in addition to teachers and students.

"Every one of this year's 38 recipients has made it their life's work to support the learning of our children, young people and adults in public schools and TAFE institutions," Mr Coutts-Trotter

"They have helped change lives, change communities and enrich our nation.

"John Maxwell is an outstanding educator who has made an enormous difference to the futures of many students.

"He is a leader in providing quality Vocational and Education Training, particularly in entertainment industries, and his efforts have been widely recognised at regional level.

"His approach is studentcentred, aligns with the Quality Teaching Framework and Adult Learning Principles and is highly innovative.

Mr Coutts-Trotter said Mr Maxwell's work has created authentic opportunities for students to create "wonderful pathways" from school to work.

"John established the Technical Entertainment and Production Academy," Mr Coutts-Trotter said.

"This academy signed a memorandum of understanding with Gosford Council and under this agreement students use the Peninsula Theatre to perform a play for one season.

"The students are involved in all aspects, including technical, stage design and front-of-house.

"Students also provide technical support for the events of other cultural groups on the Central Coast as well as college events and others at local primary schools.

"John Maxwell's efforts have made a significant contribution to improving student retention to Higher School Certificate level."

Young writers' awards

Pretty Beach Public School students Courtney Bocking and Keira McLoskev received the Newcastle Herald's Young Writer of the Year Award for their article on the delayed dredging of Ettalong channel and the possible closure of the Palm Beach Ferry as a result.

Both year six students received $500 each as part of their award and also a highly-commended award in the Best Editorial for a Primary School category.

Eighty-four Hunter and Central Coast schools participated in the competition.

Teacher Ms Jenny Chippendale said the school was "absolutely thrilled" to win major awards at the competition.

"This was the first year we entered this competition and it is a great credit to Ms Chippendale and the Year 6 students who were part of the enrichment group to produce work of this calibre," Ms Redrup

Scientist talks to students over internet

Marine studies students from Brisbane Water Secondary College Umina Campus have participated in a video conference presentation as part of the NSW Department of Education and Training Connected Classrooms Program.

Forty-five year nine students were able to hear and see a presentation from award-winning scientist Dr Brendan Kelaher as part of their marine studies class.

The video conference promoted interactivity in the classroom and gave students the opportunity to ask the scientist about his work.

Dr Kelaher is a marine biologist currently managing the Bateman's Bay Marine Park and working to understand the impact of overfishing, coastal development, pollution, desalination and climate change on marine ecosystems.

School wins council award

Pretty Beach Public School received the Medium Sized School of the Year award at Gosford Council's Environment Awards last month.

School principal Ms Vicki Redrup congratulated everyone at the school for the achievement.

"This is a wonderful achievement and great tribute to all our students, in particular our environment monitors, teachers and parents who are involved in the many environment projects within the school," Ms Redrup said.

"The Year 4 and 5 students also won the mayoral performance award for their recycling musical item."

Students were thrilled to be a part of the Connected Classrooms Program.

Student Michael Rayner said using the internet to listen and interact with other people was a new experience and something he would like to see more of.

Sydney Swans visit Peninsula

Three Sydney Swans football players visited several Peninsula primary schools on December 3, to promote the benefits of sport and an active lifestyle.

Woy Woy South Public School, Ettalong Public School, Umina Public School and Woy Woy Public School were included in the Sydney Swans three-day community program across the Central Coast.

The program included visiting

Central Coast Schools and Gosford Hospital as well as an AFL skills clinic at Bluetongue Stadium.

Players Michael O'Loughlin, Martin Mattner and Brendan Murphy spoke to Peninsula students about their own experiences and how healthy eating and exercise was important for everybody, not just professional sportspeople.

They discussed the importance of diet and nutrition and the benefits of growing up healthy and strong.

The players also promoted a "come and try" afternoon on December 8, for children interested in playing AFL, which will be held at Woy Woy South Public School from 4pm to 5.30pm.

The clinic is being organised by the Peninsula Swans Football Club, which caters for all ages up to 16 years.

Woy Woy coach leads Wisconsin win

Woy Woy resident and former Woy Woy Lions Rugby Union coach Mr Ross Hopkins has led the University of Wisconsin's Madison rugby union side to the Collegiate National Titles for the first time in 15 years.

Mr Hopkins coached the US University team throughout its season and said he was overwhelmed by its success.

"The season is short compared to what we are used to.

"However, we had nine wins and our only lose was in the mid-west final in Elkhart, Indiana, where we lost to the University of Miami in Ohio," Mr Hopkins said.

"Along the way, we took out the Wisconsin Collegiate title, the Wisconsin Sweet 16 title and by beating Kent State University meant we qualified for the national

"It is exciting times for the University's rugby sides as we have progressed to a stage that rugby is taken very serious in a town dominated by college gridiron and basketball teams who are successful.

"The gridiron team has sellout crowds of 82,000 each home game, so Madison goes crazy over their success.

"However, the rugby is building momentum nicely."

Mr Hopkins said he would be returning to the US in April next year for the national titles as well as to return for another season.

Mr Hopkins coached the Woy Woy Lions to consecutive finals series appearances in 2004 and 2005, was also involved in the Central Coast Wave's campaign when they won consecutive Caldwell Cups in 2005 and 2006.

Mr Hopkins confirmed he would again be in charge of the Central Coast representative team next

He also confirmed he would be a part of the coaching of Gordon first grade next season after two years coaching the club's second grade team.

Winner of 100 Mile, Joel Mackay greets the finishing post at Patonga

Ultra-marathon finishes at Patonga

Umina resident Greg Brown joined more than 70 runners from across Australia to compete in the Great North Walk 100s trail ultra-marathon held on November 8 and 9.

The runners set out from Teralba on Lake Macquarie on November 8 to run either 100 miles to Patonga or 100 kilometres to Yarramalong in The Great North Walk 100s trail ultramarathon organised by Terrigal Trotters.

The route followed the Great North Walk trail and included precipitous climbs and descents, navigational challenges and difficult trails through the Central Coast hinterland.

Runners from as far as Hungary, Canada and New Zealand also participated in the ultra-marathon.

Race coordinator Mr Dave Byrnes said, since its beginning in 1995, the Great North Walk 100s has become known as Australia's "toughest" trail ultramarathon.

"Of the 76 starters, 28 made it all the way to Patonga within the 36-hour time limit and another 26 runners made it to the 100 kilometre finish at Yarramalong," Mr Byrnes said.

"Notably, all eight women who started in the 100 mile event (actually 175km) completed the event.

"The overall winner of the 100 mile event was Joel Mackay from Sydney in the time of 26 hours and 31 minutes.

"He was followed 25 minutes later by Sydney fireman Wayne Gregory.

"Having fallen early in the race, cracking several ribs and cutting his hand so badly that he was eventually hospitalised for six days, Wayne continued running for another 20 hours for his valiant second place.

"He is now the only runner to have completed the 100 mile event in all four years that it has been held.

"The first woman, Rachel Waugh of Brisbane, was in fourth place overall in 27 hours and 47 minutes, just one minute behind third place and one minute behind the women's record.

"Local runner Greg Brown of Umina Beach had an outstanding run in his first ultramarathon, completing the 100 kilometre event in 20 hours and 53 minutes.

"He was one of six members of the Terrigal Trotters running club to start in the event."

Mixed results for Umina cricket

Umina District Cricket Club saw mixed results at the end of round four against Toukley on November 22.

First grade won their second consecutive game with a convincing victory over Toukley at Umina's home ground.

Umina batted first and scored 148 with good contributions by Troy Spicer, 43, and Brad Smith, 28.

In reply, Toukley were never really in the hunt and scored 112.

Colin Smyth bowled throughout the innings taking 6/56 supported by Matt Duggan with 3/24. Second grade scored 147 batting first at Toukley with debutant wicketkeeper Warren Gomesz top scoring on 38

The bowlers shared the spoils, knocking Toukley over for 132

Scott King, Evan Smith and Jason Creese each took three wickets.

In Umina's second innings, Scott King with 44 not out and skipper Cameron Dunn with 25, put on the only partnership of note.

This proved to be another good win for the Umina Devils.

Third grade lost to Toukley as we were unable to get near the total scored by the visitors.

Tim Radford, Daniel Bergan and Ashley Jones were the best of our bowlers but our batsmen had a day to forget.

Fourth grade were knocked about having many of their regulars unavailable and ultimately lost outright.

Some brave batting performances by under-16 Patrick

Hines with 33 not out and 51, John Carroll 27 and 60, and a fighting 50 by Ashley Stocker helped to set Toukley a challenging total, which they managed to achieve with two overs to spare.

In round eight of the One Day Limited Overs (ODLO) competition, the A grade team remained on top of the table with a 10-wicket victory over Toukley.

Skipper Shane Garnett and Justin Broad each took three wickets dismissing the visitors for only 52.

James Archibald's 39 not out and Jeff Tomlin's 19 not out ensured another easy win for the Umina Devils.

Unfortunately, B grade were unable to field a team and had to forfeit to Toukley.

The C grade team were too good for Mountains.

Umina batted first and totalled 155 with Tim Knight scoring 45, while Peter and Rick Jones each scored 32.

Mountains could only manage 117, with Pete Jones backing up to take 4/29.

Tim Knight also chipped in with 3/24 and Jamie Yeo took 3/26.

Umina D grade side probably had the best result of the day.

Umina totalled 5/273 with grand performance by Steve Glassock, scoring 116 not out, ably supported by his son Andrew scoring 25.

Other juniors to shine were Jordan O'Donnell with 62, and Liam Clement with 38.

In reply, Gosford could only tally 144, once Umina's young bowling attack got stuck into them.

Liam Clement took 5/28 and James Smith 4/17 with his spinners.
