Mortgagee sale for Veron Rd seniors site

A DA-approved seniors living development site on the corner of Hillview St and Veron Rd in Umina has been advertised for sale with "mortgagee in possession".

The Umina property has been at the centre of controversy for several years over the endangered ecological community found on the site.

Real estate firm Jones Lang LaSalle advertised the 1.16 hectare property as a "retirement living investment opportunity" in the Central Coast Express Advocate on May 12.

A spokesperson for Jones Lang LaSalle said the land was being sold on behalf of the mortgagee Dobler Consultants.

"The site at Hillview St, Woy Woy, has development approval for a 52-unit retirement village, basement car park and associated community facilities," he said.

He acknowledged that a number of units had been sold off the plan and "these will be transferred to the new owner".

"I can confirm that the property is being offered for sale via expressions of interest so I don't believe there is an asking price per se "

The land has been managed by Leasurement, which has been selling units over the past two years.

The company told Peninsula News in February this year that construction work was delayed due to the Global Financial Crisis.

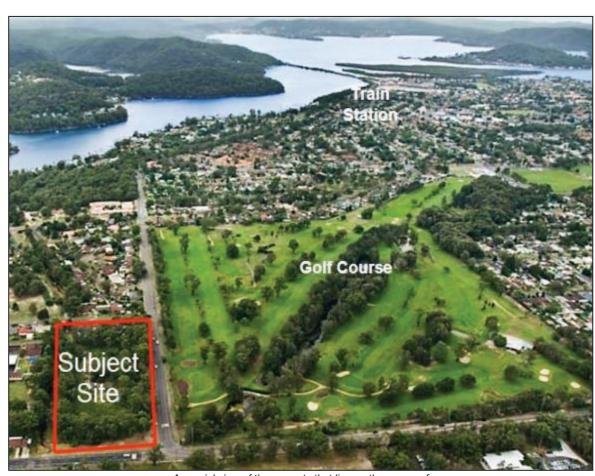

It is believed up to 11 deposits had been secured by the company at that time and building work was expected to commence back in April.

This had increased to 15 by May 10.

It is understood that the information days planned by Leasurement for May 27 and May 29 will not now proceed.

Expressions of interest for the development site close on June 17.

Effort for security fence increases

Woy Woy South Public School P&C Association has stepped up its attempts to have a security fence erected around the school perimeter following attacks by intruders every weekend over a period of five weeks.

"Groups of youths from the local area have been responsible for a long list of vandalism, graffiti, breakins and a fire that destroyed a large section of our fixed equipment," school principal Mr Terry Greedy said.

"More recently, we have had damage done to the screens and roof of the refurbished classroom blocks, attacks on the school canteen and library and items stolen from the work site associated with the new classroom block being constructed."

Mr Greedy expressed his thanks to Member for Gosford Ms Marie Andrews who has thrown her support behind the P&C's efforts to have security upgraded at the school

"I would like to publicly thank Ms Andrews for the time and support she has given to the school with this issue," Mr Greedy said.

"Hopefully by raising awareness in these circles, we will be able to gather support to have the fence erected.

"Following the apprehension of a number of youths on school grounds, police and security patrols will be increased each night as a deterrent for young people who see the school as an easy target for their anti-social behavior."

Andrews to lobby Minister

Member for Gosford Ms Marie Andrews has pledged to lobby State Education and Training Minister Ms Verity Firth for the installation of a security fence at Woy Woy South Public School.

Ms Andrews said the issue was a matter of urgency after a spate of vandalism attacks over the past month causing damage and additional cleaning at the Ocean Beach Rd school.

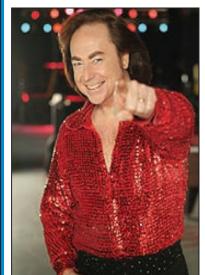

"This is a lovely school community at Woy Woy South and it is heartbreaking for the staff and students to see their school treated with such disrespect," Ms Andrews said.

"I would encourage anyone who has witnessed any acts of vandalism at this school or any other school to contact Crime Stoppers on 1800 333 000."

Ms Andrews met with staff and members of the school's P&C to discuss the issue and listen to their concerns on May 17.

Bridge 'safe' despite cancer claim

The Roads and Traffic Authority has stated that Woy Woy Bay Inlet Bridge is safe and in good condition despite the concern of a local kayaker.

Woy Woy Bay resident Mr Steve Lavis raised his concerns over the state of the bridge after he discovered what appeared to be concrete cancer within the southern pylons.

Mr Lavis said, as a kayaker on Brisbane Water, he paddles under the bridge regularly and had noticed for a considerable time what appeared to be the start of concrete cancer on the pylons.

An RTA spokesperson said it would continue to monitor the condition of the bridge, with the next scheduled assessment due next month.

"The Woy Woy Bay Inlet Bridge is a concrete bridge which was built in 1985," the spokesperson said.

"Condition assessments are done on the Woy Woy Bay Inlet Bridge every two years.

"The last assessment was carried out in February 2008.

"This inspection identified minor concrete flaking on piers near the water level.

"The bridge is in good condition and the flaking poses no risk to the structural capacity of the bridge."

Boat owners taken to Woy Woy

Two boat owners were taken back to Woy Woy boat ramp by Volunteer Marine Rescue NSW after running into trouble on May 17.

The first incident occurred when the crew onboard Brisbane Water Lifeboat were called to attend to a boat that had broken down near Iron Ladder Beach.

"Around 11.30am, the Brisbane Water Lifeboat, skippered by Anthony Porter, was sent to Iron Ladder Beach in Broken Bay to assist a five metre runabout with mechanical problems," publicity officer Mr Ron Cole said.

"The boat, with three people aboard was towed to the ramp at Lions Park, Woy Woy.

"While this vessel was under tow, the crew on duty at the Point Clare Base heard a strange motor noise from a six metre fibreglass runabout passing the base on Brisbane Water.

"In astonishment, they watched as the outboard motor detached from the boat and disappeared.

"The man on board paddled his now motor-less boat to the base

"One of the Marine Rescue members drove the owner to Woy Woy to his car and trailer.

"He returned to Point Clare where he was assisted to put his boat onto his trailer.

"It was learned that he had recently purchased the boat and this was his first outing."

Boat hits oyster lease

Eight people were rescued by members of the Volunteer Marine Rescue NSW after a hire boat they were using on Brisbane Water struck a submerged oyster lease on May 9.

Crew onboard Central Coast Lifeboat were conducting a training exercise on the bar at Box Head when they received an urgent call from the radio base, according to public relations officer Mr Ron Cole

"The crew responded immediately, and with emergency lights flashing they raced to Paddy's Channel where they soon discovered a hire launch near an oyster lease at the northern end of the channel," Mr Cole said.

"The boat had its bow nearly submerged and its stern was raised.

"The three men, three women (one pregnant) and two children on board were bailing frantically.

"Six were wearing life jackets.

"The marine rescue crew were told that the hire boat had strayed too close to the oyster lease and struck a submerged post holing the

"The families were transferred to the rescue boat, and some treated for shock and hyperthermia.

"The families were taken to the hire company marina at Ettalong and were able to retrieve its damaged vessel.3

Community hall gets a facelift

The Bays Community Hall received a $28,000 facelift with the help of two State Government grants, according to the Bays Community Group president Mr Bob Puffett.

Mr Puffett said the major improvements to the hall could not have been completed without the funding relief.

"The first grant under the Community Building Partnerships for $9500 enabled the construction assisted where possible with and erection of much-needed new fire stairwell.

"The next grant from the Department of Environment and Climate Change provided $18,700 for insulation, new heat pump hot water, energy-efficient lighting and a new awning over the entrance to the building.

"Local tradesmen and local small businesses did a great job and were very proud of their work and what was achieved for residents.

"Volunteers from the community painting and other associated

"There is local pride in The Bays and our hall is the focal point here for events and functions and these improvements really make a difference.

Grave fears of added insult

I have grave fears for the longterm viability of the Ettalong Beachfront if the Tesrol proposal is approved by the Department of Planning or ultimately by the Minister.

That our elected and compulsorily voted for local council can be over-ridden by the Department of Planning is another issue for another day.

This proposed development is of such an inappropriately large scale that should it be approved will ultimately add to the degradation of the pristine family picnic area that is Ettalong Beach.

From what I have seen, there is little difference in the current plan to that which council rejected previously.

The size and bulk of this proposed building will add to the architectural insult to this beautiful, scenic coastal precinct that is the Ettalong Memorial Club/Mantra Resort.

This building due to its huge size, shape and position, has caused such alarm and dismay in the local community as it is sited on the beachfront in an area of great natural beauty and dominates the views from all directions.

The Tesrol Ettalong Beach proposal will, if approved, form another piece in a wall of buildings along the beachfront and as such is likely to cause serious changes to the wind and wave patterns along the beachfront area and could help to seriously erode the beach sand.

This has been the case in nearby areas of the Northern Beaches where similar developments are now the subject of much concern especially with rising sea levels and associated beach erosion which is threatening their viability and will ultimately cause councils, in areas such as these, huge expenditures in a Canute-like effort to keep back the tide.

There have been pleas from residents of these buildings for councils to act to protect their assets and councils have naturally declined.

Itrust the Department of Planning will reject this development unless it wants this area to become another area of environmental degradation - the ultimate example of which is Waikiki Beach in Honolulu where sand has to be constantly imported (from NSW apparently) and Noosa Heads where man interfered with nature and built too close to the beachfront.

At Noosa, a huge stone groin has been built into the sea which has affected wave patterns and where now a huge pump needs to operate 24 hours a day to replenish the sand of the beach.

It is now acknowledged as one of Australia's environmental catastrophes.

These examples show that beachfront land must be treated with utmost respect and cannot be interfered with or changed in ways that make money for developers in the relatively short term but which may deplete councils' resources as a result of climate change.

Whatever happens, councils and governments generally are facing huge and unknown but substantial costs in dealing with these issues.

No developments should be allowed that may affect, however slightly, the natural environment - especially critical areas such as the Ettalong Beach front which is at present a bulwark and natural barrier to the sea protecting all of the low lying areas behind such as Ettalong, Umina, Woy Woy and other areas bordering the sea and Brisbane Water.

Out of character

The proposed eight-story high complex at Ettalong Beach front would destroy the wonderful village atmosphere that makes this place so attractive to visitors and locals alike.

Haven't we learnt anything from the atrocity that is the Mantra Resort building?

These buildings are totally out of character for the area and should be totally rejected.

Picture not so perfect

Unfortunate events have taken place at Pretty Beach Public School.

Much disruption has unsettled the students with changes to staffing, including two new school principals already this year.

Changes to routine, such as the cancellation of the parent-friendly morning assembly, cancellation of one of the usual two days of canteen operation, and the expected disruption caused by BER-funded building upgrades, have further unsettled the children and their families.

Meanwhile, there have been barely disguised tensions within the Pretty Beach Public School P&C Association.

Contrary to the report in Peninsula News (New executive at Pretty Beach, April 12), the handover to the new office bearers was anything but smooth.

Woy Woy in 1931

I suppose I was about five years of age, in 1931, when I first went to Woy Woy.

I do still remember the single-fronted house we stayed in at Orange Grove.

And we stayed in that house for several years after.

The township of Woy Woy stayed just the same, I suppose, for 20 years ... just the same few shops.

The cake shop always fascinated me with its windows – full of flies crawling over the cakes and pastries.

But it didn't deter the people who went in the shop and bought cakes.

Later, the arcade was built opposite the railway station where the station-boat came in.

I had a giftware shop in that arcade.

Woolworth's was also there about that time.

Then there was the arcade in the centre of town and there, of course, the shopping complex.

Woy Woy was really only a little fishing town for so many years.

What really opened the town up was the electrification of the train line.

People could live in Woy Woy and work in Sydney.

When I was going to work in Sydney from Ashfield, it took me an hour.

The bus to the station, then the train to Town Hall and of course neither met the other, normally the bus just missed the train.

So travelling from Woy Woy to Sydney was not much longer.

Chamber welcomes centre opening

The Peninsula Chamber of Commerce has welcomed confirmation that the new supermarket in Umina will be open for business on June

"This is great news for the Umina Beach town centre," Peninsula Chamber president Mr Matthew Wales said.

"We understand that this is several months ahead of schedule and will see the completion of state-of-the-art Woolworths supermarket that will replace the aging Flemmings across the road.

Over the last 12 months, the Umina Beach retail centre has as the major retailers recognise the growing opportunities on the southern end of the Peninsula.

"The completion of the Woolworths store coincides with the refurbishment of the BiLo supermarket in Oscar St which will be upgraded to a larger footprint Coles supermarket over the next few months.'

Mr Wales said it was expected that construction of the Aldi supermarket development in Trafalgar Ave would be commencing early next year.

"Clearly Umina Beach has firmly established itself as the major retailing hub for the southern announcements over the next six months," Mr Wales said.

"This is good news for all retailers in the town centre as the major operators will act as draw cards for customers wanting to come to town.

"Importantly, all this new activity coincides with Gosford City Council's new Draft Local Environmental Plan and new Development Control Plan particularly the proposed Umina Village Centre Expansion Area - Structure Plan which came off exhibition on May 5.

Input sought on Council plans

Gosford Council will seek changes, new issues emerge and community input on its longterm plans for the region when it holds an information display at Deepwater Plaza in Woy Woy on Thursday, May

The display will be part of council's Community Engagement Strategy, which will form the basis of the Community Strategic Plan Gosford 2025.

Gosford mayor Cr Chris Holstein said the engagement strategy would influence council's plan for the future and the way its programs and services were delivered to the community.

"Over the next 12 months, council's long-term plans are being renewed to reflect the changing needs of our community and the community is being invited to have its say," Cr Holstein said.

"Gosford 2025 will be council's new long-term plan - our highest level planning document that will take the Gosford Community Vision 2025 to its next stage.

"We are seeking community input to turn this vision into actions."

Council's director of environment and planning Mr Gary Chestnut said council had collected a great deal of information over many years of working with the community that needed to be continually reviewed and updated.

"The information we have collected describes the needs of the community and is used to make decisions on the range of services council provides," Mr Chestnut

"However, as our community community priorities change.

The Peninsula Environment Group will celebrate the opening of its native garden with a barbecue and bushtucker talk at the Woy Woy Environment Centre on Sunday, June 6.

Group president Mr Mark Mann said members of the community were also welcome to come along and enjoy a free native plant giveaway and information on

Parking restriction to be enforced

Gosford Council has enforced a four-hour parking restriction on the lower levels of Woy Woy Commuter Car Park, according to a council report.

The parking restriction will be temporary until construction works to upgrade the commuter car park have been completed.

"The construction of the car park will displace customer parking from both the ground floor and first floor of the Deepwater Plaza car park throughout the period during which this car park is being demolished and a new multi-deck car park is being built on the same site to provide parking for Deepwater Plaza customers on the lower floors and parking for commuters on the upper floors," the council report stated.

"Agreement reached with the Transport Infrastructure Development Corporation and Deepwater Plaza is for the ground floor and for the first floor of the existing multi-deck to be altered from commuter parking to shopper parking for the period of construction of the car park expansion.

"It is intended that the shopper parking be established on the same basis as for the displaced Deepwater Plaza parking with four-hour parking restriction enforced through agreement by council rangers."

The signage was installed by TIDC on April 19, at no cost to council.

LETS trade day

The Central Coast Local Exchange Trading System group will hold a trade day at Woy Woy Environment Centre on Saturday, June 19.

Group member Ms Caroline Bohlsen said the event was a great way for Peninsula residents to find out more about the advantages of trading goods and services with other people in the area without the use of money.

Ms Bohlsen said Central Coast LETS allowed members to provide services to other members.

"This can be anything from fixing a fence, to baking a cake, or walking the dog.

"Goods such as children's toys and clothing can also be traded.

"The group has businesses involved, including printers, counsellors training organisations.

"Members are given a 1000 debit and credit limit of the local currency (called shells) and can begin trading straight away.

"There are regular market days to allow members to meet face-toface and promote trading.

"There are hundreds of offerings onlineatwww.centralcoastlets.

"The group is also a contributor to www.kiva.org to help alleviate poverty.

The trade day will start from 11am to 1pm at 267 Blackwall Rd, Woy Woy.

Hairdresser saves with efficient lights

A Woy Woy hairdresser is expected to save $1770 a year after replacing downlights with more energy-efficient models.

Passion Hair and Beauty in Woy Woy has taken part in a campaign to switch "energy guzzling" downlights over to energy-efficient halogens.

The local salon has joined more than 2000 hairdressers across the state in a bid to slash electricity bills by hundreds of dollars.

It is estimated that a total of 24,000 down lights will be replaced, saving each hairdresser an average of $350 a year on their electricity bills.

Around 100 downlights have been replaced at Passion Hair and Beauty salons at Woy Woy, Kincumber and West Gosford, according to salon chain owner Ms Tracey Maryska.

Ms Maryska said she registered for the downlight program because she wanted to make her salons more environmentally focused.

"The average energy bill for our salons is about $3400 so anything I can do to reduce energy bills is important." Mrs Marvska said.

"Lighting is so important for colouring and precision cutting and immediately we found the lighting much clearer.

"The replacement is done free

"It will save money and cut carbon emissions.

of charge.

"It was a really easy process."

In addition to cutting her lighting costs, Ms Maryska received further energy efficiency advice like turning off her hot water system and airconditioning units when salons are unoccupied.

Energy Australia's energy efficiency expert Mr Paul Myors estimated that Ms Maryska would save more than 5800 kWh, cut more than $1170 a year from energy bills and save more than six tonnes of greenhouse gas emissions.

"More than 90 per cent of hairdressers have downlights which can add hundreds to an annual energy bill," Mr Myors said.

"Small business owners. including hairdressers, can save hundreds of dollars every year by making simple changes to their electrical fittings and energy use."

Mr Myors said research showed an average hairdressing salon had about 20 downlights, adding about $800 to an annual energy bill.

"Energy efficient downlights shine just as brightly as traditional downlights, use around 30 per cent less energy and last two-and-a-half times longer," Mr Myors said.

"This program will not only replace energy guzzling downlights with more energy efficient options but will also help salon owners identify other ways to cut their energy bills even further."

The hairdressing downlight replacement program partly funded from the NSW Government's Energy Efficiency for Small Business Program.

Hairdressing salons interested in taking part in the program have until June 30, to register.

IS THE NSW LABOR GOVERNMENT BUGGERED?

Failed MP for Keira, David Campbell, is yet another Labor Party MP exposed as deceptive, not that different from others recently exposed as failed representatives including John Della Bosca, Milton Orkopoulos and Karyn Paluzzano.

Perhaps David is not as bad as Milton "the horrible" Orkopoulos, former Labor member for Swansea.

When politicians remark, "he (David Campbell) has finally come out of the closet", am I the only one wanting to know if these are the same politicians who should have know of Milton "the horrible" Orkopoulos' penchant for illegal drugs and adulterous affairs with young Labor men and boys from his electorate, exposed by the court, as an offensive part of his taxpayer funded, double life?

Because of the extraordinary number of scandals, some involving criminal acts, the Office of Premier and Cabinet itself has a bad smell about it, which will not go away until the rat's nest within is thrown into the street, where it belongs.

Times have changed and politicians being what they are, the personal values of our elected representatives are now part and parcel of the disrepute. deal they broker with their constituents when they stand up and ask us to give our votes to them in trust.

Most of them, just like MP David Campbell, are pushing their family and community values to the front of their political campaign.

I believe that many of the current crop of politicians are, without doubt, living double

Certainly, the occasional one may, at any time, be exposed as two faced.

Consider Labor's Karyn Paluzzano from Penrith, self confessed and by definition a liar, but not until the day after her pension was secure.

I have had a gut full of lying, two faced politicians.

I resent the fact that main stream political parties, which make up the majority of NSW Parliamentary members, insist on accommodating our politicians' sinning against the people.

We can see by Parliament's inaction, that party members are comfortable with their party leaders' team mates' constantly bringing NSW Parliament, the oldest in this country, into

When exposed, these worthless products of a dysfunctional democratic process are often permitted to take their taxpayer funded pensions and entitlements, often in excess of millions of dollars and move back into private life, leaving the long suffering taxpayer the poorer for having trusted them.

Liberal, Labor, Greens, Nationals, Democrats, on and on, are not bothering to exercise due diligence in oversighting the activities of their party members.

The problems being exposed at the top have, in every case, come up through the ranks.

This is an independent, non partisan statement made by me in the interest of informing the public

Why is the Labor Party so dead set on ignoring the closure of our Rehabilitation Hospital at Woy Woy Public Hospital?

Brian Neville asked

On the Peninsula, we have the highest percentage of people over sixty five, some 9000, who can be expected, during their retirement, to need what was an important and long standing medical amenity in our still growing community.

If you, or someone you know, wish to be seen and heard outside our the NSW Parliament in Macquarie Street, Sydney over this issue, please make the effort to join our free bus.

It will be leaving the front of Umina Public Library on Tuesday, June 1 at 9 am.

We will be dropped off outside NSW Parliament, where our presence will be noticed and photographed.

Those wishing to attend should, if possible, bring with them placards with a few words of message written in a large font or on a banner expressing concerns about the loss of our important medical amenity.

We expect to be back at the Umina Library by 2 pm.

While we will only be at Parliament for perhaps forty minutes, that should be sufficient time to take photos for use in the media and to make our presence there memorable and effective.

Rod and Pat Radford

Long life celebrated

The Rotary Club of Umina Beach has celebrated the life of one of its "most treasured members", Rod Radford, on the occasion of his 90th birthday.

Rod has had a long association with Rotary and an even longer one with the local area.

The Radford family arrived on the Central Coast on holidays in Later they purchased land at Wagstaffe Point where Rod and his wife Pat eventually settled.

Rod operated a pharmacy in Ettalong and used to make the journey from home to work in an amphibious car.

This was one of the first in Australia and it was also used to deliver urgent medicines to outlying areas such as Empire Bay, St Huberts Island and Daleys Point.

With around 60 years of service to Rotary, community service has also remained a central pillar in Rod's life as an active member of the Rotary Club of Umina Beach and a former member and past president of the Rotary Club of Woy Woy.

Rod is a Paul Harris Fellow and received a Sapphire pin to commemorate his 50th year in "Ten years on, we very much appreciate his honour, deftness as a raconteur, his choral skills, and above all we value his sense of humour," said long-time club member Mr Geoff Melville.

"Rod may have turned 90 years of age but he is still young at heart and has lost none of his ability to make connection with youth and their endeavours, an ability that has endured over the years."

Seminars by US speaker and Newcastle life coach

A US motivational speaker and Newcastle life coach will team together to bring local residents a series of free seminars at the Peninsula Community Centre next month.

The Woy Woy All Power Seminar will run across four sessions and will "take participants on a journey of living a life of personal power", according to motivational speaker Mr Leo Schreven.

All Power Seminars are designed to show "Bible principles that will help you master every area of your life".

Mr Schreven said most people had money worries, relationship difficulties or were a health hazard waiting to become a statistic.

"In fact, 95 per cent of us will retire dead broke.

"One in three of us will die of one of seven diseases.

"One in eight of us are on antidepressants, while stress, taxes, mobiles, computer games and TV are all taking their toll on our mental health.

"If the future is looking bleak, there is an answer."

Mr Schreven will join life coach Mr Justin Lawman in helping people discover how to master their life physically, mentally, emotionally, spiritually and financially.

"We will take you through the positive pleasure of improving your life in every area," Mr Schreven

Mr Lawman has been training, coaching and speaking to large audiences around the world for the last 13 years.

He said audience members would be invited to "become part of our world-wide family of optimistic, results driven, high achievers who are ordinary people performing at extraordinary levels".

To register, visit www.trybooking. com/EZW, email allpower@adsl. on.net or phone 1300 486 683.

The seminars will be held at the Peninsula Community Centre from June 17 to 20, starting on the Thursday night, continuing Friday night, all day Saturday and finishing Sunday afternoon.

Guides sell biscuits

Blackwall Girl Guides will be selling Girl Guide Biscuits over the next two weeks.

The local guide group will be selling packets of biscuits outside Flemings supermarket in West St, Umina, from 9am to 12pm on Saturday, May 29.

The group have also planned to set up a stall outside the IGA supermarket in Ettalong from 9am to 12pm on Saturday, June 5.

"Supporting this important campaign is about much more than buying biscuits," Girl Guides Australia's chief commissioner Ms Lynne Price said.

"With every biscuit sold, another generation of girls learns to set goals, grow in confidence, work in teams, make business decisions, develop business ethics and manage money.

Blackwall Girl Guides publicity officer Ms Leonie Newson said

Girl Guide members would also be accepting donations of corks in order to recycle into cork products such as tiles and boards.

"The funds raised from both biscuit sales and recycled corks enable the girls to continue enjoying the various programs run by the Guides Australia at minimum cost to their family," Ms Newson said.

How to grow food locally

Guest speaker Ms Kate McCarthy will discuss how to design and grow a food garden for local conditions at a Healthy Living and Raw Food course in Umina on Thursday, May 27.

Ms McCarthy of Point Clare has many years experience in growing food for her family as well as many private and public gardens and is looking forward to passing on her knowledge to keen participants.

"While I'm keen to involve family and community in growing food, starting at your own place is easy whether it's in the garden, on the patio or kitchen bench," Ms McCarthy said.

"At my place, I grow food in any spare space, and use a recycled bathtub as a worm farm in the front

"I get my seedlings going upstairs as there's lots of winter

"It's great that you've got a hub of Peninsula people who are interested in growing and eating fresh organic produce, and I've been a strong supporter of the Peninsula Environment Group food network.

"I've grown organic food as a supplier, and I've bought produce that comes from the Mangrove Mountain farmers.

"My great-grandparents also used to have a market garden on the Peninsula, so I'm pleased to be part of a long tradition of foodarowina

"Currently I'm working as the urban food farmer, teaching organic food-growing principles to adults and children at Wyong Public School Community Gardens.'

Ms McCarthy will speak at Umina Anglican Church Hall at 6.30pm on May 27.

Group supplies local produce

The Peninsula Environment Group Food Network is more local encouraging residents to take advantage of locally-grown and affordable organic produce.

Group member Ms Zainem Ibrahim said organic food was and environmentally healthy friendly but the extra costs often stopped people from "going organic".

"If you're passing the Woy Woy Environment Centre on Blackwall Rd, every second Tuesday afternoon, you'll find it bustling with activity as members of the local Peninsula Environment Group food co-operative sort and pack their fortnightly delivery of organic fruit and vegetables," Ms Ibrahim said.

Ms Ibrahim said the non-profit community group was looking to make organic and chemical-free food available at similar prices to non-organic food.

"Buving direct from Mangrove Mountain farms means the farmers can still get a fair price but we pay less," Ms Ibrahim said.

"What's more, the produce is normally much fresher than in the shops, which means it tastes better and has far more nutrients.

"And there's less unnecessary packaging and less food miles and greenhouse gas emissions getting it to your plate."

The food network group also organises quarterly orders of organic dried foods (such as rice, flour, beans, nuts and so on) at wholesale prices.

Members of the food cooperative pay a small annual fee

"Everyone is also expected to take on a small task to make the group work, such as a couple of hours a fortnight helping sort the food delivery," Ms Ibrahim said.

Pearl Beach Glee Club Picnic, 1951

Grand Concert for 60 years

The Pearl Beach Progress Association will host a Grand Concert to commemorate 60 years since the official opening of the Pearl Beach Memorial Hall.

The evening of entertainment will feature a range of musical and artistic acts that reflect past concerts seen at the hall, according to Pearl Beach Progress Association communications officer Ms Lynne Lillico.

"In the late 1940s, the Pearl Beach Progress Association had begun building a community hall which was dedicated in 1950 as a war memorial to the sons of several local families who had died during World War II and in Korea,"

Ms Lillico said.

"To raise funds toward the village hall a number of Pearl Beach residents formed a Glee Club and put on a series of Grand Concerts.

"Many of the community had no previous theatrical experience however at their first concert in June 1950, they presented an exciting night of musical entertainment which includes skits, comedy items, and musical renditions concluding with a number of popular melodies which the capacity audience joined in.

"To commemorate the 60th anniversary this year, some local people have got together to present a commemorative evening of similar items – some of which were on the original programs.

"The accent on the forthcoming concert will be fun for this fundraising event, with barbershop quartet, humorous part-songs, vocal and instrumental solos, recitation, sketches and a special guest artist."

The Pearl Beach Grand Concert will be held at the Pearl Beach Memorial Hall on Friday, June 4, from 7.30pm.

Tickets are available starting at $10 for children and $15 for adults that includes a welcome drink.

Peninsula youth perform at Laycock

Around 20 young people from the Peninsula will perform in this year's Youth In Performing Arts concert series at Laycock St Theatre from May 31.

The show will feature some of the best young Central Coast dancers, actors, bands, vocalists and instrumentalists aged 12 to 21 years, according to event coordinator Mr Chris Cox.

Mr Cox said with more than 400 auditions for a place in the concert, 168 performers were selected, making it one of the toughest years of competition in the show's history.

Six scholarships will also be awarded to eligible performers participating this year.

"This year saw a vast number of quality performers and the strongest level of competition for positions we had seen for a very long time," Mr Cox said.

"The Brisbane Water Secondary

College Woy Woy Campus are performing a great acrobatic act along with other individuals including Naomie Jones and Elissa Koppen from the Peninsula.

"Since its inception in 1992, YIPA has sought to provide an opportunity for the best young performers on the Central Coast to showcase their talent in a professional venue.

"Former Australian Idol top 12 performers Ashleigh Toole and Ben Mackenzie will be performing amongst a host of other talented Central Coast youngsters.

"In previous years, the show has been the platform for performers to move onto bigger things on both a national and international stage, with Amy Edwards and Joshua Horner performing on London's West End and Nathan Foley featuring in popular children's band Hi-5."

Busk-a-thon to be held at Ettalong

Ettalong Beach's main street will come alive with the sound of music for an acoustic busk-a-thon on Saturday.

The inaugural event promises to be a wonderful day of music and entertainment for the whole family to enjoy, according to ASC Songwriter Assist president and founder of the Australian Songwriters Conference Ms Lisa Butler.

Ms Butler said she first entertained the idea of holding a busking competition in conjunction with the Australian Songwriters Conference a couple of years ago.

Since putting the idea forward this year Ms Butler said she was pleased to receive a high level of support for the event.

"Gosford Council and RAW Music and Media were the first to come on board, closely followed by the Ettalong Beach Business Group, and Star 104.5 FM," Ms Butler said.

"Ettalong retailers are right behind the event.

"We are hopeful of a great turnout by musicians, singers and songwriters, whether they are seasoned buskers or not."

"The Peninsula is a beautiful, friendly, relaxed environment and perfect for a winter getaway so we are working hard to bring Australian and international visitors here each June long weekend to be immersed in the beauty of the waterways and the music being created here."

Helping with mosaic

A bare wall in Gosford that has been constantly tagged with graffiti will have a mosaic installed with the help of Peninsula community groups, Mingaletta and The Web Youth Service.

They have teamed up with members of the Gosford Business Improvment District community for a special project to tackle graffiti.

Deborah Lowndes said several local community groups and businesses would work together over the coming months to create a mosaic tile artwork in Gosford.

"The mosaic project has been developed to create a sense of place in Gosford for the community, provide another beautification project for the city and act as a deterrent to the graffiti frequently appearing on the wall of the building," Ms Lowndes said.

"The groups will base their design around the theme Reflecting the Past, looking to the Future which is about Gosford's history and how we see the city in the future."

Ms Lowndes said a series of workshops would see the completion of the project.

Ms O'Connell said.

"In Raku, a ceramic piece is quickly heated to approximately 1800 degrees Fahrenheit.

"The gas flame is enhanced by an electric blower, which provides more oxygen to the flame making it burn hotter.

"The Raku artist must wear leather protective gloves and light, cotton clothing to protect from the intense heat from the kiln."

Recollections of Patonga

Quite some time ago, I was sitting in a waiting room and picked somewhere, up an ancient copy of a women's magazine and read an article referring to "ruins" where "hippies" and socalled "drop-outs" resided or camped on the Hawkesbury River, below the road to the now established look-out at West Head.

Such a road did not exist when I was a small boy, but I well remember the origin of these socalled "ruins" and the tenacity and sheer guts of the man that built them.

I have since pondered on why this, and the efforts of many other early settlers of the lower Hawkesbury, should go into oblivion without some record of their achievements

The good lord, that great architect of the universe, gave me a brain for which I am grateful, and I now document my recollections to the best of my ability.

As a small boy on holidays at Patonga, I vividly remember old Bob Robinson telling my parents of the time when he was much younger, coming with his nets and boats to fish the beach and creek that was eventually to be called Patonga.

He said that one day, he saw a man with a large ginger beard, looking at him from the scrub above the beach, and in a friendly gesture, gave him a supply of fresh fish.

This gentleman was Mr EW Williams, and one could debate forever, who was the first settler at Patonga, but it was certainly one of these two Ernie Williams established a thriving business there and had two daughters and one son, Betty, Helen and Dick.

Bob Robinson was not only a very successful fisherman, but nature's gentleman in every word.

As far as I can recall, he had three sons and one daughter: Bob junior, Jack, Henry and the daughter, Tippy.

The Robinsons founded a dynasty and their grandchildren reside there today, and hopefully, they always will.

In those days, fish were in abundance, schools of mullet, as well as flathead, whiting, flounder, jewfish, to name a few, and netting them was very hard work.

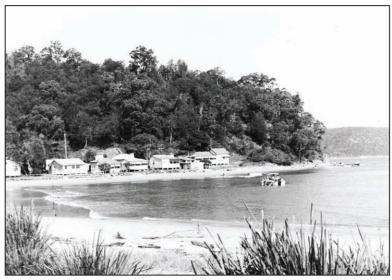

The nets were extremely long, weighted with lead on the lower

When it was decided to "shoot", two-end ropes would be held on the beach, then one party would row the boat in a large semi-circle enclosing the fish, and come ashore further along the beach when the net was expired in the

The rower would then take the other two end ropes, and together both fishermen would wrap these ropes around their waists and walk up the beach and slowly drag the

The centre of the net had a large bag in it called a "bunt", and as the net came out of the water, the captured fish would recede to remain in water and eventually be caught in the "bunt" which would be hauled manually up on to the beach, untied and the fish selected into boxes.

Once loosely packed in the boxes, these fish were placed onto fishing craft, loaded to the gunwales, and up to four or five of these would be towed by launch (also loaded) to Brooklyn where there was located the only available ice works.

The fish would be re-packed in ice, boxed again and nailed down and then carried manually to the Hawkesbury River Railway Station for eventual forwarding to the Sydney fish markets.

Such was the life of a fisherman then.

Today, a similar nettina procedure exists, but the nets and ropes are light nylon, the floats plastic and they are slowly hauled on to the beach by diesel tractors, with snap-freezing techniques available, then immediately placed in refrigerated road transport.

I guess it was inevitable that these two wonderful families would interrelate as they did when Clarrie Witchard married Tippy Robinson.

They always were an integral part of the Patonga community, and I deeply regret as I compile these memoirs in 2006 that I was recently informed by my niece, Lyn Partridge, of Clarrie's demise.

Such things as water tanks, fibro sheeting, timber and plumbing equipment, as well as basic furniture were needed.

The up-river town of Brooklyn also needed many items too cumbersome to be delivered by the railway.

At that time, settlements on Brisbane Water such as Saratoga, Empire Bay, Kincumber and Wagstaffe were also in need of the same goods, as roads from Gosford were non-existent. To meet these requirements, the North Coast Steam Navigation Company serviced these areas from Sydney with three coal-fired cargo boats, the "Erina", the "Eringai" and the Volunteers at fete and market day

A group of Year 11 and 12 students from Brisbane Water Secondary College volunteered their time to help out at the Fairhaven Services fete and market day on May 8

The students were involved in the annual event as part of a Technical Entertainment Production Academy Entertainment course they are currently undertaking at school.

The purpose of the day was to raise money for the local community organisation, according to Year 11 TEPA student Courtney McDonald.

She said students helped out on market stalls, selling raffle tickets and dressing up as clowns for the children's entertainment.

"The clowns walked around giving balloons to children and doing tricks to entertain and make the children laugh," Ms McDonald said.

"Other students helped out by operating audio systems, customer service, as well as marketing and publicity under the supervision and guidance from the technical manager, one of the Year 12 entertainment students, Beau Robinson.

"There was a great range of entertainment throughout the day."

Event organiser Ms Sue Chidgey said the day was a huge success with an even "bigger and better" event planned for next year.

"The vital funds raised from the fete will be directed to provide vocational and residential services for over 160 local people with disabilities."

Student responds to treatment

Woy Woy Rugby League Football Club has reported that a student it has sponsored has turned a corner in her battle against Hodgkin's Lymphoma.

The club has published a letter on its website from Ms Kelly Drewe, the mother of Year 8 student Aimee Bliss, advising that cancer treatment appears to have worked.

Ms Drewe described a recent visit to Aimee's specialist.

"We were told that Aimee's treatment had worked.

"Her scans have come back all clear and showing her glands to be at only one centimetre, which is normal for her.

"These were very large, some at over eight centimetres around five months ago," Ms Drewe said.

"Aimee is presently on threemonthly scans and, if free for two years, may well be free of Hodgkin's Lymphoma."

According to her proud mum, Aimee has bounced back brilliantly following her prolonged battle.

"She is looking great and putting on weight and is making a huge come back to her school life," Ms Drewe said.

"Just this last week I received a phone call from her head teacher telling me that the teachers are more than impressed with her, and they are asking her to slow down and to take a breath."

The Brisbane Water Secondary College student made the news earlier this year when she received support from the local community, along with the support of a number of NRL stars including Parramatta and Australian rugby league player Jarryd Hayne.

His boots were auctioned to help meet the cost of Aimee's treatment.

Soccer players raise cancer funds

Over-35 men's soccer teams at Woy Woy FC raised more than $2500 through the club's Cancer Council Call to Arms campaign recently.

The initiative, targeted specifically to sporting clubs, raises awareness and funds to fight men's cancer, according to club president Mr David Cornwell.

"With half of all men facing a cancer diagnosis, it could be your club mates, community and family who benefit from Call to Arms," Mr Cornwell said.

"The $2500 plus result on the day far exceeded our expectations.

"We knew that the generosity of the football community and the Peninsula in general could be relied upon but this amount of money really shows just how good the community spirit of the area is."

Mr Cornwell said funds were raised principally from Woy Woy players buying yellow socks to wear on the day as well as raffles which included a signed Central Coast Mariners jersey.

Other raffle prizes were also donated by several local businesses and individuals in the community.

In addition, cash donations were made by opposition teams Southern and Ettalong United FC as well as East Gosford FC that played at Woy Woy on the day.

Mr Cornwell said the result has encouraged organisers to make the charity day an annual event.

"But it was not long before it was seven-all.

Why do more Peninsula based businesses advertise in Peninsula News than in all the other mediums combined?

- √ Peninsula News only carries articles about the Peninsula, directly targetted at Peninsula residents
- √ Peninsula News only has a maximum average of 35% advertising making all advertisements more visible
- ✓ Peninsula News has a long shelf life (2 weeks) giving readers time to complete the paper and see all the advertisements before receiving another one
- ♦ Peninsula News is seen by the community as their newspaper and advertisers are seen as sponsors
- ♦ Peninsula News reaches all Peninsula families with school children, a very important target market
- √ All copies of Peninsula News are picked up by interested readers only, eliminating wastage and wet weather problems
- Newspapers are more effective as an advertising medium than radio, TV or cinema because people do not have to remember information. It is there for them to refer to in detail at their leisure
- ▼ Peninsula News advertising is far less costly than leaflets delivered in letter boxes, is more effective because it does not arrive with a myriad of other catalogues and is not subject to weather conditions

Parents feature in New Zealand

The Woy Woy parents of Australian and New Zealand netballer Megan Dehn have featured in a local New Zealand newspaper.

Ken and Elaine Anderson of Woy Woy travelled to New Zealand earlier this month for a holiday and to catch up with their 35-year-old daughter who is currently captain of the Southern Steel kiwi netball squad.

Megan Dehn plays in the ANZ Championship that sees her travel between Australia and New Zealand week-to-week.

Her parents told The Southern Times newspaper that it was wonderful to catch up with their daughter and fit in one of her local games but were yet to witness a Steel win at the home stadium in three years of trying.

"We haven't got a good here," record down Anderson said.

"That's our third loss at Stadium Southland."

However, the Peninsula couple did manage to see their daughter in a winning effort when they caught a Steel's win over Tactix in Christchurch on May 1.

Megan Dehn played 20 tests for Australia between 2000 and 2006 and Mrs

Anderson said it was always a proud moment seeing her daughter represent her country.

"It was great seeing her run out on court for Australia," Ms Anderson said.

"It was a bit nerveracking.

"Australia and New Zealand games are always close

"There's only a few points in it."

Ms Anderson said one of her first memories of Megan on the netball court was when she was seven.

"I remember she played a game at school and came home and said she really enjoyed it and would like to play," Ms Anderson said.

"She's been hooked ever since."

Dehn said her parents had extremely been supportive throughout her career and was thankful for the numerous times they had taken her from her Woy Woy home to Sydney for games and practices when she was growing up.

"They've been massive," Ms Dehn said.

"I wouldn't be where I am today without them."

Ocean Beach Malibu Club - Blake Donkin, Kayd Donkin, Tom Payne, Ben Orman and Mitch Cassidy

Surf confusion was avoided

A day of confusion was avoided when both the Ocean Beach Malibu Club and Umina Boardriders held competitions on the same day at Ocean Beach recently.

Both clubs enjoyed breaks far enough apart to not inconvenience either party, according to Ocean Beach Malibu Club contest director Mr Craig Coulton.

"The huge swell from the previous two days had settled down, producing consistent four foot sets with just the occasional bomb coming through.

"A beautiful sunny autumn day along with a light offshore breeze made conditions just great for competition and to top it off, stayed the same throughout the contest until just near the end of the final heat when the wind turned onshore.

"Hayden Emery further extended his lead in the club championship, scoring maximum points for the day.

"Round one winners on the day were Hayden Emery from Kayd Donkin and Ron Stockings, Scott Arena from Matt Sing and Darrell Young, Brent Thoroughgood from Craig Palmer and Bill Burke, Garry Halliday from Richie McClelland and Mick Day, Mitch Bolton from Mark Williams and Ben Orman and in the final round one heat, Calyn Wilkinson outpointed Kai Ellice-

Flint and Craig Coulton.

"Round two saw some exciting surfing in the excellent conditions but, as had been the case in all but one contest this year, Hayden Emery was too good for the other first placegetters, with Garry Halliday claiming second and Calyn Wilkinson taking third spot.

"In the seconds, Mark Williams surfed brilliantly even with an injured knee to get the points ahead of Richie McClelland and Matt Sing.

"The thirds saw one of the new up and coming juniors, Ben Orman knock off two old timers in Craig Coulton and Darrell Young, while Bill Ballard was successful over Brent Olsson and Mitch Cassidy in the fourths.

"The fifths was won by Mark Rylands from John Payne and Glen Bible while in the sixths, another newcomer, Paul Donkin, beat Chris Irwin and Jason McKay who was surfing in his very first contest with the club."

The next Ocean Beach Malibu Club contest is scheduled for Sunday, June 13, at Umina Beach, commencing at 7am.

Bunnies find a difference

The Umina Bunnies Under-19s found what a difference a week can make with five players missing from the previous week's win and going down 28-14 against Northern Lakes on May 9.

"Lack of discipline with and without the ball proved costly," club secretary Mr Ian Sonter said.

Meanwhile the Umina open grade side continued on its way to record a 28-12 win over previous year's nemesis in the Central Wyong Razorbacks, according to Mr Sonter.

"Dictating from the outset, the Bunnies played a controlled and organised game," Mr Sonter said.

Former Bunnies players Adam King and Phil Cappell returned to join Steve Little in providing added enthusiasm to the team, he said.

"Umina second grade put the previous weeks' effort in the history pages as they set about restoring their season with a comfortable 30-6 win over Northern Lakes.

"Nathan Shanks led the way in the forwards with some bruising defence, closely followed by Ben Paget and Dan Johnson in attack in a fine display of rugby league from the Bunnies.

"In the final game of the day, our first graders went down gallantly 24-22 to Northern Lakes Warriors, who many pundits pick as one of 2010 grand finalists already.

"The game was played without fear or favour as the young Bunnies in their National Breast Cancer Foundation pink jerseys stood tall.

"Time and again the 50/50 results slowed the Bunnies' progress but never at any stage did they consider throwing the towel in, which pleased coach Marc Matthews."

Two minutes of judo in Budapest

A member of Woy Woy Judo Club will travel to Budapest this week to compete for two minutes in the European Judo Unions Grand Masters World Judo Championships in Hungary.

Having competed in the same contest in Germany last year, Woy Woy judo assistant coach Mr Mike Griffiths is looking forward to travelling to compete internationally once again.

"I was the only Australian competitor amongst a heavily contested group of Europeans while the announcer kept calling 'Michael Griffiths of Austria... Sorry that's Australia'." Mr Griffiths said.

"It was a fantastic competition, with judo running second to soccer as the most popular sport in Europe."

With a Sho Dan First Degree Black Belt, Mr Griffiths will not be the only Australian attending this year's event.

Travelling in the company of two officials from Judo Australia.

International kata referee Rob Ivers and Ivor Endicott-Davies will be officiating kata judges.

Mr Griffiths said that, while he was looking forward to the games, it would be a challenge against tough competitors from Russia and Germany.

"There are 22 players in my 50 to 54 years division this time," Mr Griffiths said.

"We will be placed in three or four pools.

"The bout time is two minutes with the rules that use an elimination system with double repechage.

"So you must win your first match in order to continue through."

"It seems like a long way to travel for a two-minute bout, but I'm passionate about my sport and very excited to represent Australia.

"Judo is a life-long activity and you're never too old to be involved."

The competition provides participating teams with the opportunity to try five different sports - netball, basketball, indoor soccer, volleyball and European handball.

Competition organiser Mr Phil Wishart said the interest in the competition from the community had been strong.

"We have received a great response to this inaugural competition with spots filling fast to the mixed competition."

Gosford Council's coordinator of leisure and lifestyle Mr Simon Clarke said the competition was sure to involve a number of exciting matches with European handball expected to provide a steep learning curve for most teams.

Bunnies had hard-fought win

The Umina Bunnies claimed a "hard-fought" win over the Woy Woy Roosters in the first local derby at Woy Woy Oval on May 16.

Umina club secretary Mr Ian Sonter said the local game had "much in common" to the Bunnies first grade win in June 2004.

"Both games saw the Bunnies skip away to an 18-nil lead over their more fancied opponents and both established match winning leads before the oppositions fight back," Mr Sonter said.

"The boys led 42 to 26 (40 to 14 in 2004) before easing off the throttle and letting the opposition to run in two late converted tries for a final score of 42 to 38.

"Meanwhile, after being down 10-nil, the Woy Woy second grade recovered just after halftime to 10-

Mr Sonter said the open graders learnt a "valuable lesson" about the need to concentrate on the game for its entire time.

"The Bunnies were well in control but the opposition never gave up and with under five minutes to go, the Roosters hit the front 24 to 20.

"The way the Bunnies were playing, it was game over.

"But the Bunny spirit rose and, with one final attacking raid, a try to Adam King converted by Shannon Sharpe after the siren gave the Bunnies a lucky 26 to 24 win to take them to equal top of the table.

"Copybook tackling displays from Paul Casey, Mick Byrnes and Scott Young were a highlight of the game.

"The old saying, 'they can't run without legs' was never better demonstrated than by these three."

Swans juniors play at Swans game

A group of young members from the Peninsula Swans AFL Club travelled to Sydney Cricket Ground to play at halftime during the Sydney Swans and Brisbane Lions clash on May 1.

Club publicity officer Ms Rowena Newton said the trip was a dream come true for the local junior players.

"Most of us only ever dream about playing on the hallowed grounds of the Sydney Cricket Ground...the sacred stomping ground of cricket legends like Lillee, Chappel and Marsh," Ms Newton said.

"However, early this month the youngest members of the Peninsula Swans AFL team headed down to the SCG to play at half time during the mighty clash between the Sydney Swans and the Brisbane Lions.

Coach Ms Tanya Ferguson said she was very impressed with how well the kids played. "They love it," Ms Ferguson said.

"It is such a fantastic opportunity to play at the SCG as a five or six year-old.

"Two of my own kids are in the team and it has really developed their confidence."

Meanwhile, local youngster Jonathon Newton, aged six, had been looking forward to the big game all week and was pleased to score a goal."

Ms Ferguson said he was also pleased to see that he'd made it onto TV, even if he was the size of an ant.

Peninsula Swans junior players participate in the AFL Auskick program, an introductory initiative for primary school-aged boys and girls and their families where players learn the skills and rules of the game through appropriately modified activities in a fun and safe environment.

Comfortable win

Woy Woy Rugby Union Club recorded a comfortable win over Warnervale at Woy Woy Oval on May 15.

"The 61 to 10 result was never in doubt but Warnervale gave it their all against a good team who put in a fine performance," Central Coast Rugby Union president Mr Larry Thomson said.

"Woy Woy were able to run in nine tries to demonstrate their superiority in the game.

"Best for Woy Woy were winger Matt Bishop and centre Orisi Ranavua who both scored two tries.

"Best for Warnervale was Ketoni Tautau who scored their sole try."
